ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

WE ARE most grateful to all those who contributed their time and effort, with open minds and honest discourse, to this volume. It is their dedication to psychoanalysis and their creativity, skill, and persistence that make this book possible.

We would like to thank our editors at Columbia University Press, in particular Lauren Dockett, who deftly guided and supported this project from its inception, and Jennifer Perillo, who saw it to its fruition. We are truly grateful to all of the staff at Columbia, who lent this project their full enthusiasm and commitment.

This project would not have been realized without the support and encouragement of the faculty and participants of the New Directions Program and Winter Retreat. Their generosity and spirit have inspired us over the years.

We are deeply appreciative to Robert Winer for his wise and amazing editorial skills. He is a writer of uncommon erudition who can read a piece and find exactly what works and what doesn't. Linda Kanefield lent her unflagging support, always ready to read our drafts and offer valuable insights and edits. Julie Eill and Elizabeth Thomas were generous with their feedback and input. Sara Taber offered her unfaltering encouragement to keep writing. Paula Atkeson has been a consistent source of emotional sustenance.

We could not have completed this project without our husbands and children. They fed us, encouraged us, proofread drafts, and supported this endeavor.
