Index

Abrams, S., 60
abstinence, 46
acting out, 102, 122, 124, 155 adultilization, fallacy of, 178 agency, 25, 211
agent, self as, 70
Alexander, Franz, 10, 37, 48, 202, 207, 214 alienation, 116–18
aliveness, psychological, 153–68; clinical innocence in, 160–62; defined, 156–57; fallibility in, 164; solitariness in, 162–63; spontaneity in, 164–65; therapeutic curiosity and, 158–60 allocentric attitude, 161 Allport, Gordon, 70
allusion, 191
Altman, N., 215 analyst: as active participant, 54; countertransference and analytic working space, 175–79; “living through” benefits to, 212; omnipotent strivings in, 176; as participant-observer, 50; patient as copartner with, 15–16, 29–30, 63, 93, 129–30; personality of, 203; prescriptive, 127–28; self-revelation of, 203, 209–210 analytic situation: anonymity in, 42; interpersonal fields in, 13, 22, 50–53, 63; neutrality in, 41, 52; parameters of, 34; relatedness in, 15 analytic working space, 169–83; active engagement, 178; adultilization fallacy, 178; analysis of resistance, 179–83; anxiety and, 169–71; coparticipant, 170, 187; countertransference analysis, 175–79, 182–83; empathy and engagement in, 171–73; infantilization fallacy, 179; resistance and responsibility in, 174–75 Angyal, Andras, 24
anxiety: acceptance of, 98; analytic working space and, 169–71; apprehension and, 94–96; in clinical setting, 169–70; dread and, 89; embeddedness, 167; influence, 165; interpersonal self and, 72–73, 94; living through process, 95; personalized self and, 80–81; psychopathology and, 51; in resistance analysis, 180–81; Schachtel on, 80–81; secondary, 80 apprehension: acceptance of, 98; anxiety and, 94–96; dread and, 89; as fear of change, 80–81; living through process, 95
Arieti, S., 160
Aron, Lewis, 12, 53, 215 arrested development, 136, 213–14 attitude, allocentric, 161
Atwood, George, 12, 61, 215
Bacal, Howard, 61
Balint, Michael, 48, 119
Bass, Anthony, 12, 53, 203
Beebe, B., 77
behaviorism, 82
Berlyne, Robert, 82, 160
Bollas, Christopher, 60
Bonime, Walter, 111, 124
Brandchaft, B., 12, 61, 215
Brenner, C., 10
Bridgman, Percy, 79
Bromberg, P. M., 203
Bruner, Jerome, 82
change, fear of, 80
character development, 50 child development: intimacy in, 76–77; communication modalities, 190–92 conformity, social, 88
copying, 4–5, 198
control, 151, 176
Cooley, Charles H., 71
Cooper, A., 166–67
coparticipant inquiry: aliveness in, 155–58; analyst role (see analyst); analytic process, 20, 33, 34, 170; analytic responsibility in, 30–31, 174–75; bidirectional nature of, 29; in classical analysis, 40–44; clinical applications, 3, 4, 13–15, 19–20, 39, 137–40; empathy and engagement in, 172–73; emphasis on reality, 131; evolution of, 40–66; experience in, 36–39; individuality in, 25, 31–32; interpersonal field in, 22–26; interpersonal psychoanalysis and, 13, 50–57; intersubjectivity in, 14–15, 61–62; multidimensionality of self in, 81–82, 82t; narcissism and, 126–40, 141–52; nonparticipant observation vs., 45t; open-endedness of, 33–36, 137–38; openness to singularity, 166–68; participant-observation and, 19, 56–57; patient role (see patient); personal self dynamics, 26–28, 26f; principles of, 15–16, 21–39; radical vs. conservative, 65–66, 217n1; relational vs. experiential, 65–66; relationships in, 63, 91–92, 131, 141; self-actualization in, 90–91; self-esteem in, 148; versions of, 12–13 coparticipant transference analysis, 184–201; aggressive approach to, 150–51; analyst’s narcissism in, 148–51; communication modalities, 190–92; in coparticipant inquiry, 22–24, 33–34, 53; counterresistance in, 177; countertransference, 149, 175–79, 186–88; defense analysis, 182; early introduction of, 192–93; experience in, 23, 188–90, 192, 194–95; extratransference in, 195; here-and-now transference, 193–95; interpretation in, 199–200; of narcissism, 129–32, 139–40; non-coparticipant approach vs., 187; openness to singularity, 167; positive vs. negative, 192; transference-countertransference as reciprocals, 185, 187; transference distortion, 197–99; transference relatedness in, 87, 186; uniqueness in analytic work, 39, 201; working alliance in, 195–97 coparticipation: conservative, 217n1; defined, 5, 13–14; in Freudian psychoanalysis, 42–43; limited role in classical analysis, 10; in living through process, 211–12; modern Freuds on, 12; in narcissism analysis, 129; in object relations theory, 11; personal self dynamics and, 93; process vs. inquiry, 14; as quality of relatedness, 13; radical, 35, 54, 57–59, 217n1; transformation of analyst by, 20 copartners, analytical, 15–16, 29–30, 63, 93, 129–30 corrective emotional experience, 202, 207, 214 counterresistance, 177 countertransference: active engagement as, 178; analysis of, 34, 89, 131, 151, 185–88; analytic working space and, 175–79; distortions, 149, 199; empathy as, 178; enactments in, 192; experience in, 188–90; as field process, 22–24, 52; narcissism and, 107–108, 127, 129–30, 143–44, 151; parataxic relatedness in, 107; relational intimacy and, 92; in resistance analysis, 180, 182–83; resistance to, 145, 171; as transference reciprocal, 185, 187; Wolstein on, 57–59. See also coparticipant transference analysis; transference cultural-interpersonal paradigms, 2 curiosity, 158–60, 224(ch.10)n1 defense analysis. See resistance analysis defensive desire, 182
demandingness, 116, 149 dependency, 96, 149–50, 186 desire, 182
developmental arrest, 136, 213–14 dissillusionment, traumatic, 146 dread, 78–79, 88–90. See also fear drives, 2 Dupont, Judith, 49–50 eclectic integrationists, 56 egos, 50, 70. See also self egom-interpersonal paradigm, 59–60 emotional experience, corrective, 202, 207, 214 empathy: analytic working space and, 171–73; as countertransference, 178; in narcissism treatment, 133–35; in resistance analysis, 179–80, 182–83 enactive communication, 191 engagement: active, 53–54, 138–39, 178; analytic working space and, 171–73 entitlement, 116, 142, 146 environment, holding, 208 environmentalism, radical, 219(ch.2)n1 experience: action and, 23; corrective emotional, 202, 207, 214; curative role of, 36–59; generalizations, 188–89; historical, 194–95; immediate, 16; induced, 191; interpersonal, 152, 204, 214–15; narcissism and, 142; parataxic, 37, 219n2; prototaxic, 37, 219n2; syntactic, 219n2; in transference analysis, 23, 188–90, 194–95 experiential field, 22 experimentalism, 13, 55–56, 65–66 extratransference, 54, 195, 221n2 Fairbairn, R. D. W., 19, 60, 76, 101, 214 fallacy of adultization, 178 fallacy of infantilization, 179 fallibility, analytic, 164 family therapy, 24–25
Farber, Leslie, 79
fear: in analysts, 39; change and, 80; of dependency, 149–50; of freedom, 167; in narcissism, 147; powerlessness and, 88. See also dread Feiner, Arthur, 54, 60, 165
Ferenczi, Sandor: on abstinence, 46; coparticipant inquiry and, 4, 10, 14, 45–50; on interpersonal experience, 214; on reconstructive relational experience, 37; relationship with Freud, 45, 49; relaxation technique, 46, 47 field theory and processes, 22–25, 52. See also interpersonal fields focused association, 191 Frederickson, Jon, 221n1
free association, 191
freedom, fear of, 167
French, T. M., 37, 202, 207
Freud, Sigmund: on clinical innocence, 161–62; on impersonality in analysis, 10, 18; on narcissism, 103–104; on nonparticipant observation, 4, 40, 44; relationship with Ferenczi, 49; therapeutic methods, 40–44; on transference and countertransference, 44, 54, 193
Freudian analysis: analytic relationship, 41–42, 214; anxiety and powerlessness, 73; coparticipation in, 10–11, 42–43, 60–63; interpretation in, 213; nonparticipant forms of, 41–42; oedipal neu-}

Index 237

roses vs. narcissism, 129; patient classification, 105 Frie, Roger, 221n1, 223n6
Fromm, Erich: on active participatory engagement, 53–54; authoritarian focus of, 54–55; on existential needs, 80; on extratransference, 54; on fear of freedom, 167; on interpersonal field, 55; on narcissism, 103, 106, 112–13; on observant participation, 219(ch.3)n1; on self, 78, 79; on self-fulfillment and anxiety, 96–97; on social conformity, 88 Fromm-Reichmann, Frieda, 78, 79, 90, 214 fulfillment. See self-fulfillment Gedo, J., 3
Gestalt school, 22
Gill, Merton: on analytic authority, 197; coparticipant inquiry of, 62; on interpersonal experience, 214–15; on power of psychoanalytic process, 204; on transference, 29, 198
Glover, Edward, 206
Goldberg, A., 3
Goldstein, K., 82
Goz, R., 203
grandiosity: in analysts, 176, 177; defensive pathological, 143; in narcissism, 109, 113–15; in shamed child, 120; in spoiled child, 121
Greenberg, J., 2
Greenon, R., 10, 41, 213
Guntrip, H., 60, 111

Hall, C., 2
Harlow, Harry, 82
hateful child, 123–24
Haynal, A. E., 48
hermeneutics, formulative, 56
Hirsch, Irwin, 219(ch.3)n1
Hoffman, I. Z., 197, 198
Horney, Karen, 71, 79, 106, 110 idealization, 115–16, 121 illusionment, traumatic, 146 immaturity, in narcissism, 146, 150 impersonality, in analysis, 10, 18, 41 improvisation, 35
individualism, radical, 219(ch.2)n1 individuality, 85–86 induced experience, 191 indulgence, 46–47, 121
infantilization, 121–22, 179 influence, 25, 165, 219(ch.2)n1 innocence, clinical, 160–62

Downloaded from cupola.columbia.edu insight, 213, 214
integrationists, eclectic, 56 internalization, transmuting, 136, 208 interpersonal fields: agency and, 25; in analytic situation, 15, 22, 50–53, 63; context and meaning, 24–25; in coparticipant inquiry, 22–26; Sullivan on, 22, 24, 50, 55; transference and coun-tertransference, 22–24 interpersonal psychoanalysis: American vs. British approaches, 50–51, 59–60; categories of, 55–56; characteristics, 51; coparticipant inquiry in, 13, 50–57; Fromm on, 53–55; narcissism and,
104–106, 152; neglect of psychological agency, 221n1; Sullivan on, 51–55; turn to, 48–49, 50, 59
interpersonal relations, 12, 16, 214. See also object-relations analysis interpersonal self, 15; anxiety and, 72–73; in coparticipant inquiry, 63, 72; defined, 26, 71, 72; dynamics of,
26–27; narcissism and, 104–105, 130–31; overlap with relational self,
87–88; security needs, 27, 73–74, 107;
Sullivan on, 26–27, 55, 72–74; therapeutic preoccupation with, 178–79 interpretation: in classical analysis, 213, 214; in coparticipant transference analysis, 199–200; Kernberg on, 136; living through and personal relationship, 205; pluralism in, 16; relationship vs., 213–16; syntactic, 37 intersubjectivity, 14–15, 61–62, 221n1 intimacy, 75, 76–77, 91–92 introjective transference, 130, 144
Jacobs, Theodore, 12, 60, 62, 63
Jaffe, J., 77
James, William, 71
Jaspers, Karl, 212
Kernberg, Otto, 101, 127, 135–37
Klein, Melanie, 19, 25, 48, 60
Kohut, Heinz: on arrested development, 136; coparticipant perspective, 61; on mirroring analysis, 11; on narcissism, 101–102, 104, 106–108, 127, 132–37,
146; psychology of the self, 2–3, 61,
133–34; on relationship processes, 19,
214; on self-object relatedness, 27,
107; on transmuting internalization, 136, 208
Lachmann, F., 77
Langs, Robert, 34
Lasch, Christopher, 110
Levenson, Edgar A.: on analytic authority, 197; on coparticipation, 2, 20, 25, 60;
on curiosity, 160; Fromm influence on, 54; on power of psychoanalytic process, 204; on transference, 53, 194
Lewin, Kurt, 22, 24
libido vs. nonlibido paradigms, 2, 3, 82 limits and limitation, 103, 120 Lindzey, G., 2
living through process, 202–216; affirmation and validation in, 208; analyst’s personality and, 203–204; analytic relationships, 209–211; anxiety and, 95; attempted transformation of analyst, 205–206; coparticipation in, 211–12; curative action of, 90, 204–209; defined, 203; empathic mirroring in, 207; experimental validation, 206; interpersonal interactions in, 208, 210–11; interpretations in, 205, 207; narcissism analysis, 136, 152; reintegration of core needs, 209; self-esteem and, 119; working through in, 208
looking-glass concept of self, 71 love: lack of, 47
lust. See sexuality Maslow, Abraham, 84, 160, 161
masochism, analytic, 176 May, Rollo: on coparticipant inquiry, 98; on narcissism, 117; on personal self, 79; on self and anxiety, 74, 97; on social conformity, 88
Mead, George, 71
Meissner, W. W., 215
Mendelsohn, E., 215
Menninger, K., 10
mental health, drive for, 206 metapsychological pluralism, 16, 31–32
Miller, M. L., 215
Mills, Jon, 221n1
mirroring analysis, 11, 63, 168 mirror-observational model. See nonparticipant observation mismirrored narcissism, 146
Modell, A. H., 208
Munroe, R., 2
More, A. T., 79
motivation, 27, 82–84
multidimensional self, 69–84; copar-ticipatory dimensions, 74–75; interpersonal self, 72–74; motivational theory and, 82–84; personalized self, 79–81; personal self, 78–79; physical self, 75–76;
relational self, 76–77; schematic for, 81–82, 82t; self-states vs., 223n6 Murphy, Gardner, 24, 82 mutual analysis, 47–48, 49 mutuality, analysts’ fear of, 39 needs, hierarchy of, 84 neglected child, 123–24 neocatharsis, 47

neurosis of normality, 89 neutrality, observational, 41, 52 Newton, S., 208
nonparticipant observation: as clinical model, 3, 4; coparticipant inquiry vs., 45t, 63; Freud on, 40; openness to sin-gularity in, 168; in psychoanalysis, 17–18 normality, neurosis of, 89 object, self as, 70–71 object-relations analysis: American vs. British schools, 50–51, 59–60; coparticipation in, 11, 60, 63; Ferenczi influence on, 48; mirroring analysis in, 11; participant-observation in, 19; self-object relatedness, 27, 107 observant participation, 54–56, 66, 219(ch.3)n1

Ogden, Thomas, 60

openness to singularity, 155; blockages in, 166–67; clinical innocence in, 160–62; clinical inquiry and, 166–68; curiosity in, 158–60; defined, 158; fallibility in, 164; fear of, 167; solitariness in, 162–63; spontaneity in, 164–65

Orange, Donna, 61

other-directedness, 116–18

overprotection, parental, 121–22

paradigms, psychoanalytical, 1–6, 17–20, 45t, 59–60. See also coparticipant inquiry; nonparticipant observation; participant-observation parallel process, 25

parataxic experience, 37, 107, 219n2

participant-observation: analytic neutrality in, 52; authoritarian nature of, 19; as clinical model, 3, 4, 18–19; coparticipant inquiry vs., 56–57; coparticipation in, 19, 52–54; coparticipant inquiry vs., 56–57; coparticipation in, 19, 52–54; interpersonal fields in, 51–52; for narcissism, 105; object-relations approaches, 19; openness to singularity, 168; Sullivan on, 12, 18, 19, 50–53

Pearce, J., 208

personality, 52, 70

personality disorders, 214

personalized self, 79–81

personal self: clinical aspects, 89–94; in coparticipant inquiry, 27–28, 63–64; defined, 27, 71, 78; dynamics of, 26–28; Fromm on, 55; individuality of, 85–86; interpersonal injuries, 27; processes of, 78–79; psychic dimension of, 27; psychopathology of, 109; as

parataxic experience, 37, 107, 219n2

participant-observation, 54–56, 66, 219(ch.3)n1

Ogden, Thomas, 60

openness to singularity, 155; blockages in, 166–67; clinical innocence in, 160–62; clinical inquiry and, 166–68; curiosity in, 158–60; defined, 158; fallibility in, 164; fear of, 167; solitariness in, 162–63; spontaneity in, 164–65

Orange, Donna, 61

other-directedness, 116–18

overprotection, parental, 121–22

paradigms, psychoanalytical, 1–6, 17–20, 45t, 59–60. See also coparticipant inquiry; nonparticipant observation; participant-observation

parallel process, 25

parataxic experience, 37, 107, 219n2

participant-observation: analytic neutrality in, 52; authoritarian nature of, 19; as clinical model, 3, 4, 18–19; coparticipant inquiry vs., 56–57; coparticipation in, 19, 52–54; coparticipant inquiry vs., 56–57; coparticipation in, 19, 52–54; interpersonal fields in, 51–52; for narcissism, 105; object-relations approaches, 19; openness to singularity, 168; Sullivan on, 12, 18, 19, 50–53

Pearce, J., 208

personality, 52, 70

personality disorders, 214

personalized self, 79–81

personal self: clinical aspects, 89–94; in coparticipant inquiry, 27–28, 63–64; defined, 27, 71, 78; dynamics of, 26–28; Fromm on, 55; individuality of, 85–86; interpersonal injuries, 27; processes of, 78–79; psychic dimension of, 27; psychopathology of, 109; as personal self  (continued)

subject side of psyche, 85; Wolstein on, 58–59 physical self, 75–76
pleasure principle, 83
pluralism, 16, 31–32
power, 176, 222n5
powerlessness, 73, 88
preservationists, radical, 55 privilege, 116
progressive motivation, 82–83 projective identification, 25, 60 prototaxic experience, 37, 219n2 psyche, 85–86, 213–14
psychic center, 164
psychic self-fulfillment, 78 psychoanalysis: aliveness in, 153–58; ambiguity of clinical events, 198; American vs. British schools, 18–19, 48, 50–51, 59–60; analyst's personality in, 203; classificatory schemas, 2–3; clinical models, 3; control in, 176; dimensions of, 3; diverse approaches, 1–2; emotional connection to patient, 207; impersonality in, 10, 18, 41; induced experience in, 25; interpersonal (see interpersonal psychoanalytic); interpersonal experience in, 204; intersubjective, 61; metamodels, 2–3; nonparticipator observation in, 17–18; openness to singularity, 166–68; paradigms, 1–6, 17–20, 45t, 59–60; patient-analyst integrations, 9; power in, 176; relational, 13, 64; scientific basis for, 10, 18, 40; self-actualization in, 90–91, 211; stereotyped, 166; therapeutic action of, 213–16. See also coparticipant inquiry psychological agency, neglect of, 221n1 psychological aliveness. See aliveness, psychological psychological field theory, 22–25, 52. See also interpersonal fields psychology of the self, 2–3, 61, 71, 133–34

psychopathology, 51

Racker, H., 60, 197
radical empiricism, 13, 55–56, 65–66 radical preservationists, 55 rage, 38
Rank, Otto, 10, 47
reality morality, 150–51
reductionism, 85–86
reflexive self, 71–72
regression, 82, 131, 193 Reik, Theodore, 162

relatedness: analytic, 15, 208, 224(ch.13)n1; coparticipation as quality of, 13; narcissism and, 103, 109; parataxic, 107; pathological patterns of, 205; transference, 87, 103 relational psychoanalysis: coparticipant inquiry in, 13; as metaschool, 64; neglect of psychological agency, 221n1; paradigms, 2, 19 relational self, 76–77, 87–88 relations, 56
relationship, analytic, 203, 213–16, 224(ch.13)n1 relaxation technique, 46, 47 Renik, Owen, 12, 58, 60, 62 representation, self as, 70 resistance analysis, 179–83; analytic working space, 174–75; anxiety in, 180–81; countertransference, 180, 182–83; empathy in, 179–80, 182–83; escape in, 181; transference, 194, 224(ch.12)n1 resourcefulness, 16 responsibility, analytic, 16, 30–31, 174–75 responsiveness, 16, 25
Rogers, Carl, 11, 70, 178 role-responsiveness, 25

sad child, 123
sadism, analytic, 176
sadomasochism, 115–16
Salzman, L., 215
Sampson, H., 215
Sandler, J., 25
Schachtel, E.: on anxiety, 80–81, 96, 167; on clinical innocence, 161; on curiosity, 160 Schecter, D. E., 77, 81 schizophrenia, 103
scoptophilia, 160
Searles, H. F., 25
security, interpersonal, 27, 73–74, 107 seduced child, 124 self: as agency, 221n1; clinical dialectics of, 85–98; complexity of needs, 86–87; definitions, 69–70; disorders of, 109, 111, 214; ego as, 70; intimacy and, 75; looking-glass concept, 71; multidimensional nature of, 69–84, 82t, 222n2; narcissism and, 101–108; personalized, 79–81; physical, 75–76; psychic center of, 58, 71; psychology of, 2–3, 61, 71, 133–34; relational, 76–77; sexuality and, 75–76; as social product, 72; states of, 223n6; subject vs. object, 71. See also interpersonal self; personal self self-actualization, 83, 90–91, 222n3 self-alienation, 116–18 self-centeredness, 112–13, 143 self-concept, 70
self-disclosure, 33
self-esteem: of analyst, 148; approval and, 73; core deficit in, 209; grandiosity and, 113; narcissism and, 119, 147; self-actualization and, 101; self-realization and, 96–98; shifts in, 171 self-fulfillment: anxiety and, 96–97; barriers to, 86; narcissism vs., 101–103; power motive in, 222n5; relational intimacy and, 92–93; self-esteem and, 101; unfulfillment, 78–79, 88; Wolstein on, 27, 78, 79; yearning for, 78–79, 89–90 self-inflation. See grandiosity self-object relatedness, 27, 73–74, 107 self-realization, 96–98 self-transformation, 207, 211 separation anxiety, 80–81 sexuality, 75–76, 186, 222n4 shamed child, 120–21
shamed experience, 142
Shaw, D., 215
significance, 103
Singer, Erwin: on analyst self-revelation, 203; on curiosity, 160; on personal self, 79; on progressive motivation, 82; on transference, 188–190 singularity, 103, 138–60. See also openness to singularity social-psychological paradigms, 2 solitariness, 162–63
special child, 122–23 spoiled child, 121–22
spontaneity, 164–65
spurned child, 123–24
stagnation, psychic, 90
Stanton, M., 46, 48
stereotyped inquiry, 166
Stern, D. N., 77
Stolorow, Robert, 12, 61, 197, 215
Stone, Leo, 41
Sullivan, Harry Stack: on analytic authority, 54–55, 197; on analytic interpretations, 200; on anxiety, 72–74, 80, 94, 169–70; on drive to mental health, 88; on extratransference inquiry, 221n2; hysteric categories, 111; influence of, 53; interpersonal field theory, 22, 24, 50, 55; on interpersonal self, 12, 26–27, 72–74, 222n2; on intimacy, 76–77; on lust, 76; neglect of transference and countertransference, 54; on openness to singularity, 168; on operationalism, 79; on participant-observation, 18, 19, 51–53; personality theory, 219n12; on power motive, 222n5; on reflexive self, 71–72; on release of defensiveness, 173; on self-centeredness, 112–13; on self-esteem, 101; Theorem of Escape, 181 surprise, 160–62
Symington, Neville, 60 sympathy, preying on, 171 syntactic experience, 37, 219n2 systems therapy, 24–25
Tauber, Edward, 53, 54
Tenzer, A., 204
Theorem of Escape, 181
therapeutic action, psychoanalytic, 213–16 therapeutic aliveness. See aliveness, psychological Thompson, Clara: on analytic theory, 2; on anxiety, 80, 90; Ferenczi influence on, 48; on interpersonal self, 79, 214; on narcissism, 103; on tendency to develop and grow, 88 timidity, 147–48
transactive communication, 191 transference: analytic resistance and, 194; apprehension and anxiety in, 95–96; as countertransference reciprocal, 185, 187; defined, 184; dependency in, 186; distortion, 197–99; enactments in, 192; as field process, 22–24, 52; Freud on, 44, 54; generalizations from experience, 188–90; hostility in, 23; interlocks in, 130; interpretations, 199–200; intersubjectivity in, 61; introjective, 130, 144; multiple modalities in, 190–92; in narcissism, 107–108, 132–33, 139; patient expansion of, 29; philosophy of inquiry and, 127; relatedness in, 87, 105, 186; sexuality in, 186. See also coparticipant transference analysis; countertransference transformed analyst, 25 trauma, narcissistic, 145 traumatic disillusionsment, 146 traumatic illusionment, 146 true desire, 182
uncivilized child, 121
unfulfillment. See self-fulfillment verbal narratives, 191
White, Robert, 82
Wilner, Warren, 53
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Pages</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Winnicott, D. W.</td>
<td>19, 60, 78, 106</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Witenberg, E. G.</td>
<td>166–67, 207</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wolstein, Benjamin</td>
<td>197; on analytic authority, 17, 20, 57–60; on curiosity, 160; on ego-interpersonal paradigm, 2, 59–60; Fromm influence on, 54; on immediate experience, 37–38; on individuality, 31, 32, 79; on psychic self-fulfillment, 27, 78, 79; on psychoanalysis of rage, 38; on spontaneity, 164–65; on transference and countertransference, 53, 57–59, 130, 190, 192; working through process, 90, 152, 208</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zucker, H.</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>