INDEX

Abramson, J. S., 165
Acute stress disorder, 376–77
Adams, P., 856, 865–66
Addictions, 469–73, 567, 718
Adjustment disorder, 368–69
Advance directives: conflicts between wishes of patient and family, 270; in context of long-term care, 632; cultural differences in use of, 455; discussions of, opportunities, unwillingness, 705–67, 771–75; education issues, 552–53, 774–75; failure to accompany patient to hospital, 635; family’s or physician’s unwillingness to comply with, 716, 764; federal and state policies, 762–63; forwarded by Cruzan case, 761; for gays and lesbians, 493; healthcare proxies and proxy directives, 597, 598, 635, 688–89, 733–34, 764; immunity for healthcare providers complying with, 776; inclusive, 603; information as part of nursing home admission process, 632; inmates’ lack of understanding of, 610; legal issue of enforcement, 739; living wills, 176, 635, 733–34, 762–64; Medicare requiring query as to, 762–63; need arising along with medical advances, 761; need for separate directives for different states, 763; for nursing home patients, 629; for prisoners, 784; purposes, types, characteristics, difficulties, and benefits of, 175–76, 732–34, 762–64, 765–67, 771–72; recommendations by AMA, 764–65, 766–67; stating patient’s preference, 773; transplant patient (with case example), 688–89; values history as adjunct to, 735, 742, 766
Advance directives, legal issues: Bergman v. Eden Medical Center, 740; constitutionality of state statutes, 738–39; enforcement, 739; improving due process guarantees for incompetent patients, 740–41, 748; injury from unwanted treatment as “battery,” 739; new generation of, 741–42; protection for doctors for double-effect euthanasia (pain relief hastening death), 739–40
Advance directives, problems with: absence of legal liability for noncompliance, 734, 735; ambiguity as to ability to refuse “hydration and nutrition,” 734–35; ambiguity as to “terminal illness or condition,” 734; factors behind nonuse by most Americans, 737; failure to address unpredictability or ambivalence of patient at end of life, 742; fear of litigation, 737; ideological influences of right-to-life principle, 744; ignorance, conflict, or value-substitution on part of healthcare proxy/surrogate, 735; incorrect belief regarding refusal or termination of life-support measures, 735; legal presumption in favor of treatment, 737; opposition to, by “state interests,” 735–37; physicians or healthcare institutions unduly influencing patient’s decision making, 741; polarizing clash of legal versus medical paradigms, 737–38; requirement of “clear and convincing evidence” to refuse life support, 735; restrictive state statutes, 734; unconstitutional restriction of autonomy, prolonging suffering, 735
Adventure-based experiential practice, 651–53, 658
African Americans: advance directives, lower prevalence of, and suspicion of healthcare system, 604–5, 774; disparities in quality of healthcare, 444–45; disproportionate numbers incarcerated, 611; expressions of bereavement/grief/mourning, 258; impeded access to hospice care, 445; impeded access to routine primary care, 715; percent under hospice care, 417
African Americans (Cont.) population projections, 440, 441; vulnerability to undertreatment for pain, 383, 718; see also Discrimination
Multicultural issues
Ageism, personal, cultural, and structural, 348–58
Aging baby-boomer generation, xix, 409, 838–39
AIDS. See HIV-affected patients and families
Air hunger (panic attacks), 703
AIDS, living and dying from, 43–54
Allport, G., 31
Als, living and dying from, 43–54
Altilio, T., 380–406, 549, 559, 560, 566, 834
Alzheimer’s dementia, 366–67, 773; Quinlan, K. A., 135, 816; see also Advance directives; DNR (Do Not Resuscitate) orders; Euthanasia
Ancis, J., 718
Aristotle, 139
Armenia, earthquake, 672
Art therapy, 500, 651
Aschcroft, J., 748
Aschcroft, J., 748
Atrocities, 32–33; see also Disasters and sudden traumas
Atti, T., 226, 236
Audiotapes, 403, 712
Au, M., 734
Autonomy: advance directives unconstitutionally restricting, 735; as authenticity and acting “in character,” 605–6; balancing with moral rights of care providers, 180–81; as bioethical principle, 174; cultural attitudes, 773–74; debate over physician-assisted suicide, 722–53; and decisional capacity for disabled persons, 503–4; definition of, 594; depression weakening patient’s claim to, 777; ethical issues of mental condition (case example), 594–97, 599; as free action, without undue influence, 605; informed consent and refusal of medical treatment, 179, 732–33; informed consent and self-determination (with case example), 594–97, 599; informed consent and truth telling, 594, 596, 598; interdisciplinary teams’ acceptance of decisions divergent from own beliefs, 718; as participation in interdependent relationships, 231; and Patient Self-Determination Act, 407, 476, 603–6, 632, 633, 733–34, 761, 762; of patient versus physician’s paternalism, 171; social workers’ allegiance to self-determination, 164; versus decision making as family or in communal process, 388, 463, 465; without undue influence or interference, 179; see also Advance directives; Self-determination
Autopsies, 330

872 Index

Artificial life support, withdrawing or not providing: Cruzan v. Harmon and Cruzan v. Director, Missouri Dept. of Health, 115, 732, 734, 747–44, 745, 748–49, 7523, 753112, 757123, 759223, 763; “Do Not Hospitalize” orders, 635; gender issues in moral decision making, 217; hydration and nutrition, 734–35, 743, 744; legal immunity for healthcare providers, 176–77; problem of disagreement on patient’s wishes or quality of life, 176–77; question of suicide or euthanasia, 52, 135–36, 773; Quinlan, K. A., 135, 816; see also Advance directives; DNR (Do Not Resuscitate) orders; Euthanasia
Art therapy, 500, 651
Ashcroft, J., 748
Assessment, clinical: cross-cultural, 450–52; importance of “stories” in, 120–21; pain and symptom management; Mental health risk in end-of-life care; Pain and symptom management; Values and attitudes
Assessment, of larger contexts and institutions: expansion of knowledge base, 728; facets for investigation, 727; financial issues, 727–28; legal issues, 730–32; national priorities and policies, 727; paucity of social work research and documentation, 728; social work program development, 728; see also Research in social work conceptual frameworks
Association of Oncology Social Work (AOSW), 179, 835
Atrocities, 32–33; see also Disasters and sudden traumas
Attig, T., 226, 236
Audiotapes, 403, 712
Autonomy: advance directives unconstitutionally restricting, 735; as authenticity and acting “in character,” 605–6; balancing with moral rights of care providers, 180–81; as bioethical principle, 174; cultural attitudes, 773–74; debate over physician-assisted suicide, 722–53; and decisional capacity for disabled persons, 503–4; definition of, 594; depression weakening patient’s claim to, 777; ethical issues of mental condition (case example), 594–97, 599; as free action, without undue influence, 605; informed consent and refusal of medical treatment, 179, 732–33; informed consent and self-determination (with case example), 594–97, 599; informed consent and truth telling, 594, 596, 598; interdisciplinary teams’ acceptance of decisions divergent from own beliefs, 718; as participation in interdependent relationships, 231; and Patient Self-Determination Act, 407, 476, 603–6, 632, 633, 733–34, 761, 762; of patient versus physician’s paternalism, 171; social workers’ allegiance to self-determination, 164; versus decision making as family or in communal process, 388, 463, 465; without undue influence or interference, 179; see also Advance directives; Self-determination
Autopsies, 330
Awareness, suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 123–24

Baby-boomer generation, xix, 409, 838–39
Beltran, J. E., 507
Beneficence as bioethical principle, 174, 182, 388, 594
Bennett, A., 786
Benolie, J. Q., 138
Benson, H., 400–401
Bereaved, helping the: by "casserole brigade," 578; children grieving, 577, 585–86, 588; by clergy and funeral directors, 62–63, 193, 572, 578–79; cognitive behavior therapy, 588; cultural factors in mourning behaviors, 577; determining extent of change, 574–75; disenfranchised grief in nursing homes, 677–80; disenfranchised grief in prisons, 785; disenfranchised grief in schools, 578; families in early stages of mourning, 576–77; families of transplant patients, 690–91; families, programs for, 568, 587–88; healthcare professionals, 579; hospice bereavement programs, 579–80; lack of, and need for, insurance coverage for, 822; many needs, many forms of help, 571–72; mental health risk factors related to bereavement, 580; mutual-aid and self-help programs, 585–85; National Center for Grieving Children and Families, 586; needed help changing with time, 576–78; network of mutual-aid organizations, 145; openness to help, 573; Pathfinders self-care program, 585; peer support, 220; responding to stage of grieving process, 572; social support, 575–76; social workers as counselors, 24; sources of help, 572–73, 578–79; staff members of transplant teams, 691; stories as narrative therapy, 587; support groups, 588–90, 585–86, 587–85; victims of disasters and sudden traumas, 668–73; Widowed Persons Service (AARP), 145, 583

Bereavement/grief/mourning, characteristics: ambiguous loss, 49; as annihilation anxiety with feelings of persecution, 240; anticipatory grief, 254, 303, 324–26, 646; comparison of terms, 226; complicated mourning, 218–19, 670; constructivist views, 255–57; cultural variations in rituals and expressions of grief, 208, 257–59, 372–73; culture-based, historical, changing views of, 138–40; decision making, difficulty of, 49; as detaching from and letting go of relationship, 141, 142, 143–44, 214, 235, 244; detachment and dissociation in grief, 143–44, 244–53; developmental context, 228–32; differing experiences of loss, 351; disenfranchised grief, 549, 564, 592–93, 574, 757; dual process theory, oscillation, 352–53; as flight into manic activity and dependency avoidance (with case example), 248; Freud's theory of, 243; gender-related interpretation of behaviors, 211–13; guilt, 141; as illness, 144–45; for inmates, ubiquitous and familiar, 618–19; meaning as contextual, 128–29; melancholia (with case example), 244–45, 246–47; mental health risk in, 372–74; minimization of ritual, emotion, sanitization of mourning, 140, 253–54; object relations in, 248–54; pathological or chronic, 140, 142, 253, 255, 257; as potential area of research, 810; relational context, 146, 220, 227–28; risk of death following, 212; searching mode, suspended grief process, 670; shifts in theory of, 214–15; social workers grieving over death of patients, 317; stages of, 253; studies of grieving children, 141–42; twentieth-century context, 140–43

Bereavement/grief/mourning, as transition and transformation: attachment styles, 254; as building new "normality," 351; connecting to, continuing relationship with deceased, 235, 247; empowerment evolving from, 232; expansion of ego ideals (with case example), 247–48; initial responses, 237–38; learning, creating, developing, 574–75; loss and restoration-oriented responses, 238; maintenance of inner representation as link to loved one, 231; as meaning making, 193, 256, 351, 353; as negative but adaptive emotion, 242–43; as nonstatic process with change over time, 231, 236–39; as normal, expected period of transition, 144, 226; periods of dynamic instability, 232; recoil into new reality, feeling fullness of loss, 238; "stories" as adaptations to loss, 13; transcendance, transformation, and transition, 31–32, 101, 143, 232–33, 256, 260; without "recovery" but with accommodation and change, 227, 238–39, 373; "work" and "tasks" of transition, 236; see also Stories

Berger, T., 786
Bern-Klug, M., 628–40, 792–812
Berzoff, J., 1–17, 242–60, 834–35, 848–69; “Best interest” judgment, 407, 504
Bioethics, 172–73; see also Ethical issues
Biofeedback, 702
Index

Biopsychosocial services, 313–14
Bipolar disorders, 370
Birkett, D.P., 635
Blacker, S., 409–22, 548–69
Blacks. See African Americans
Blame, 284
Blickensderfer, L., 167
BMT (bone marrow transplantation). See Transplantation
Boccuti, C., 815
Body/organ donor programs, 633
Bone marrow transplantation (BMT). See Transplantation
Boss, P., 49
Boston's Coconut Grove nightclub fire, 254
Botes, A., 164, 165
Bowlby, J., 141–42, 143, 252–54
Bowman, T., 197, 853
Brenner, P. R., 445
Brody, H., 29–30
Browning, D., 21–41, 70
Brumley, R, 822–23
Buber, M., 29, 37, 860
Buddhist perspective on suffering, 24
Bulletin board groups, 542; see also Groups, online
Burger, S. G., 634
Burial rituals, 192
Burnette, D., 800
Burnout, xxvi, 83, 849–52, 853
Burton, S., 166–67
Burt, R., 753
Byock, Ira, 27, 102, 137, 418, 477, 816, 824
Cabot, R., 826
Cady, N., 166–67
Callahan, J., 172
Camp programs for terminally ill children, 336, 337
Canadian Hospice Palliative Care Association (CHPCA), 411, 412
Cancer: as catalyst for positive transformation, 707; cognitive therapy, 702; as deadly intruder, 696; decision to join clinical trial, 706; declining mortality rate, 697–98; diagnosing, 699; diagnosis precipitating crisis of self-concept, 701–2; disproportionate weight on test results, 707; educating patients and caregivers, 702; effect of patient attitude, 707; emotional support for patient and caregivers, 704–5; fear of inferior treatment, 710, 714–15; localized versus metastatic, 698–99; pace of diagnostic process, 696; pain and symptom management, 709; patient's reluctance to take up doctor's time, 708; patient's reticence and sense of isolation, 696; phase one, diagnosis, 700–705; phase two, treatment, 705–7; phase three, terminal care, 707–11; relationships with cancer-care specialists, 705; social worker's role during treatment, 706–7; social worker's role following diagnosis, 701–5; social worker's role in end-of-life care (with case example), 697, 709–19; social worker's role in terminal care (with case example), 697, 709–19; social worker's role in terminal care (with case example), 708–11; suicidality, 704; support groups, 705; treatments, 699–700; type versus location in body, 699; unpredictability for patients and families, 697–98; urgency of decision making on treatment, 706; varying types and courses of disease, 697–700
Cancer Care (social work agency), 834, 835
Cannon, I., 826
Cantor, J., 766
“Cappuccino therapy,” 862
Caregivers: to baby-boom generation parents, xix, 409, 538–39; burdens of, for families, xxii, 216–17, 553–54, 560, 765; encounters with suffering, 34–40; facing forever-changed circumstances, 109; higher mortality risk for, 820; HIV-affected patients and families, 646–47; identification and preparation, 119; lacking or unavailable, cases of, 278, 448, at odds with in-home nurses, 51; as potential area for research, 866; professional calling as suspect, 28; professional crisis in, 27–28; reluctance to medicate patient with substance-use disorders, 473; responsibilities and resources, education in, 566–67; stamina, reconciliation, remaining close to loved one, 109; support groups for, 518; traditionally women, 210; vulnerable to grief, stress, burnout, despair, and illness, xxvi, 83, 220, 554, 848, 849–52, 853, 857–58; see also Bereavement/grief/mourning; Families; Financial issues
Care movement, 821
Caribbean Islanders: choice to pursue spiritual rather than medical interventions, 365; expressions of bereavement/grief/mourning, 258
Caring, 164
Cassell, E. J., xxvi
“Casserole brigade,” 578
Cassidy, R. C., 380
Cemeteries. See Graves, grave-marks, tombstones
Cemeteries, 131–32
Chachkes, E., 825–36
Chantler, C., 163
“Chaos stories,” 51
Charitable organizations. See Professional organizations and foundations
Chat groups, 542; see also Groups, online
Chernomas, W. M., 436
Children: development of, 229–30; development of institutionalized and abandoned, 252–53; development through internalizations, 250, 251; in disasters and sudden traumas, 666–73
Children at end of life, issues for parents: allowing for range of feelings and for spiritual growth, 327–28; anticipating funeral preparations, 318, 326; autopsies, 330; coping with helplessness and guilt, 323; decision about where child should die, 324; decisions to withdraw treatment, 181; existential crises, 328–29; fostering decision-making skills, 323–24; fostering intimacy in parent-child relationship, 321–22; hope and anticipatory grief, 324–26; keeping memory alive, 235; maintaining attachments and connection, 320–21; maintaining family integrity, 321; need for family support despite fears, 316–19; nurturing playful, imaginative qualities, 321; relieving child’s guilt, giving “permission” to die, 321; remembering siblings’ pain and needs, 320; right to die without aggressive intrusion of medicine, 156; shock and disbelief, 320; support groups for, 316–17; talking at end of life, 326–27; time of death; rituals of leaving, 321; vulnerability of siblings, 337–38

Children at end of life, working with: acknowledging loss, clarifying reality, 334; adolescents, 341; beliefs reflecting those of parents, 331; children protective of parents, 337; child’s own wishes regarding DNR orders, 324; conceptions of death and developmental considerations, 338–42; continued development, 332–33; death anxiety, 341; desire to be remembered, to live on in some way, 341–42; event-based focus, 331; fears of having done something wrong, 329; fears of threats to body integrity and function, 340; group work, 335; guilt about dying, 330; helping live life to fullest, 330; honesty in age-appropriate manner, 330–31; life review and preview, 333–34; memorial balloon launch, 337; need for honest communication, 319–20; need for models of pediatric palliative care, 417; play and art therapy, 321–22; recognition for accomplishments, 331; requesting advice on care of child with similar illness, 333; social workers’ reactions to the work, 342–44; social workers sharing journey and meaning of life, 344–45; talking about death, 335–36; understanding of their illness and death, 319–20; use of metaphor for death, 336, 337.

Children, facing death of loved one: addressing fears, 713–14; centers for, 685–86; chance to say goodbye, 322; constructing relationship to deceased, 235–36, 238; “desertion” by parents during illness of sibling, 322; 338; explanations by parents, 577; explanatory styles affecting behavior, 588; for gay/lesbian parents, 493–94; grieving by, 230, 231; guardananship issues (with case example), 712, 713; internal representations of deceased, 256; parent undergoing transplantation (with case example), 685–84, 686; reactions to loss, 249–40; recognition of loss by teachers, staff, fellow students, 578; studies of grief in, 141–42; support groups for, 316–17; 368, 584.

Chirban, J. T., 434–35
Chodron, P., 24, 34
Christ, G. H., xix, 549, 559, 560, 566, 834, 835
Christianity: attitudes toward death, 131–32; perspective on suffering, 24–25
Chronic illness, 8, 171, 256, 410, 773, 815, 839
Cincotta, N., 318–45
CISD (Critical Incident Debriefing) sessions, 85–86
Clark, E. J., 835–40

Clergy, 62–63, 105, 572, 578–79
Clinchy, B., 36
Clinical ethics, 388
Clinical practice: absorbing and tolerating individual’s or family’s anger, 720; biopsychosocial services, 313–14; catastrophic illness, 54–55; collaboration and referrals, 270; control, choices, and decision-making, 502–3; counseling, 313; difficulty of therapeutic relationship with inmate, 609; dignity in death, 799; education of staff, 315; essential skills overview, 265–67; families, staving off dissonance, 296; final wishes, definition and expression of, 296; gays and lesbians, guidelines for working with, 492–94; with groups, 315, 335, 359, 359–62, 512, 545; with groups, online and telephone, 520–31, 534–45, 611–12; holding environment, developing, 310–12; holistic, 431–32; hope and reality, denial of death, 309; hope in social work clinician, 309–10; hope, role in dying process, 304–7; hope, role in interdisciplinary team, 307–9; insufficient improvements in, 8; intercession for pain relief, 296; interdisciplinary collaboration, 314–15; key interventions, 276; marginalized dying and bereaved, 474–75; need for role flexibility, 279; objectivity, problems of, 272; offering respectful death, 265; older people, implications of work with, 356–57; pain, “permission” for acknowledgement of, 296;
Index

Clinical practice (Cont.)
palliative care for disabled persons, 506; in prison settings, 615–16; research areas, 831; resistance to treatment, 281; role changes within families, 303; self-knowledge, 266–67; serving as anxiety-containment vessel, 282; sexuality, 303; social work action plan, 844; staying connected while maintaining perspective, 266; supervision, 315–17; treatment process, expectations and anxieties, 281–83; working with “open heart,” 267; see also Cancer; Children; Family assessment; Family Unity (retreat program); Mental health; Older people; Pain and symptom management; Palliative care; Skills of social workers; Support groups; Transplantation and end of life

Coconut Grove (Boston) nightclub fire, 254

Coddou, F., 162

Coffey, E. P., 43–54

Collaboration. See Interdisciplinary teams

Colón, Y., 43–54, 534–45

Commitment to therapeutic relationship, 110, 111

Communication: avoiding thoughtless use of language or jargon, 717; cross-cultural, 454–56; in families, patterns and styles, 551–53; father’s unwillingness to discuss diagnosis with son (case example), 562; issues at end of life, 508; patients’ difficulties speaking with loved ones about their condition, 510, 562; as potential area of research, 807; see also Truth telling

Community, sense of: experiential activities at Family Unity (retreat program), 650–53, 658, 665; family within prisons, 785, 786, 788–89; mediating isolation of bereaved, 581; in nursing homes, 637–38; through support groups, 583

Compassionate Friends (support groups), 445, 532

Compassion fatigue, 477, 852–53

Compassion for suffering, 34–36

Compassion in Dying organization, 745, 768

Compassion in Dying v. Washington, 745

Complicated mourning, 218–19, 670

Confidentiality and privacy issues, xxiv, 61, 521

Connection to patient, 110–11, 320–21

Controlled Substances Act (CSA), 382

Control, patient’s sense of, 285–87, 302–3

Cooke, R., 65

Cook, J. A., 216

Coping and coping styles: as adaptive behavior, 575; assessment of possible impact of bad news, 305; assessment of possible mental health risk, 363–65; effect of previous experiences with illness, disability, or death, 577–78; enhancing with internal or spoken statements, 400, 568; gender-based variations, 212, 246; multicultural issues, 613; suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 124; through promoting, validating, and normalizing range of emotions, 717; uniqueness in face of emotional and practical havoc, 716

Corless, I. B., 164

Costs of care. See Financial issues

Counseling, 313, 564–62, 587–88

Countertransference: engaging multiple subjectivities, 272; example of, 854; inappropriate neutrality and boundaries, 70; interfering with case, 435–36; need to address in supervision, 315–16; possible challenge to basic beliefs, 191; potential for, with terminal cancer patients, 709; stress affecting ability to manage, 88; therapist’s grappling with, 134–36; upon patient’s refusal of pain medications, 709; vicarious traumatization, 853–54; in work with gays and lesbians, 492

Critical Incident Debriefing (CISD) sessions, 85–86

Cross, T., 445

Csikai, E., 761–75

Culture, 554; see also Multicultural issues

Cummings, I., 453–54, 458–59

Curing, 164

Damaskos, P., 72–91

Dane, B., 444–57, 855

Daughters: middle-aged, experiencing loss of parent, 206; serving with power of attorney for healthcare for parents, 217–18; see also Gender issues

Davidson, K., 835

Davie, K. A., 835

Dawes, D., 778

Dawes, J., 778

DEA (Drug Enforcement Agency), 382

Death anxiety, 213, 249, 298–301, 342

Debriefing, Critical Incident Debriefing (CISD) sessions, 85–86

Decision making: allowed to patients, 302–3; autonomous versus shared or family-based, 461, 466, 601; “best interest” judgment, 467, 504; capacity compared to legal “competence,” 465, 503; decisional capacity (with case example), 597–601;
difficulty when frozen with grief, 49; diminished capacity, marginalization of those with, 464–68; ethical, models of, 173–74; physicians or healthcare institutions unduly influencing, 742; power of attorney for healthcare, 176, 635, 733; as rushed process in cases of catastrophic illness, 48–49; 57; “substituted” judgment, 467, 504, 597, 733, 764; surrogate decision makers, 175, 179, 455, 504–5, 552, 563, 733, 740–41, 764

Del Rio, N., 439–59
decision-making capacity, of social worker, 269; assessment as essential role process, 228–31

Denial, 559, 598

dementia or delirium, 366, 367; Depression: assessment, 367, 369; healthcare professionals uninformed, 499; ignored in dialogue on end-of-life care and healthcare decision making, 499; increasing survival rates for, 464; marginalization and pain relief issues, 385; mental health issues, 500–503; palliative care, access to, 503–7; public guardian issues, 505–6; staff as surrogate family (with case example), 500–501; state guardians, 500; support groups for, 517; vulnerability to undertreatment for pain, 383

Disasters and sudden traumas: Argentine “Dirty War,” 670–71; bereavement issues, 668–70; Boston’s Coconut Grove nightclub fire, 254; camaraderie and companionship in adversity, 857; children with traumatized caretakers, 671; description of, 233; disrupting sense of community and social life, 665; disrupting sense of safety, 665–66; earthquake, Armenia, 672; earthquakes, Turkey and India, 662–65; 672; as fearsome, shocking, and marginalizing, 462; health and survivor measures, 663; hospital workers experiencing secondary trauma, 85–88, 92; Hurricane Mitch, Central America, 662; ingredients of psychological safety, 663–65; natural and human-caused, 660–65; reconstructing sense of safety (with case example), 666–68; as recurring forms (with case example), 666–68; as forming parts of social suffering, 32–33; September 11, 2001, 72–91, 215–16, 218, 233, 663; social workers’ role, 662–64; socio-cultural context for traumatized children, 671–73; see also September 11, 2001 disciplines (branches of knowledge or practice), 166

discrimination: case example of, 448–49; as factor in “slippery slope” argument against physician-assisted suicide, 751; inculcated by families and institutions, 443, 446; inherent in misallocation of healthcare resources, 751–52, 753, 840–41; institutionalized racism, incidents of, 462; making advance directives suspect, 737; multiculturalism transforming, 446; oppression as systemic, systematic, group phenomenon, 448, 495; possibly influencing decisions regarding medical futility, 182–83; as question needing investigation, 99; social worker’s duty to challenge in health care system, 443–48; stereotyping (case example), 453; systems theory for analysis of racial relations, 446; see also Gays and lesbians; minorities, multicultural issues; Older people; Prisons discussions with patients and caregivers about end-of-life care: cross-cultural perspectives, 108–9; proposed protocol for exploring respectful death care model, 111–12; timing of, 107–8

disenfranchised grief, 349, 404, 492–93, 574, 787, 837–38

disenfranchised groups, 8, 9, 15, 269, 462, 495; see also Marginalization of the dying and bereaved distraction for pain management, 400

dnr (do not resuscitate) orders: in cases of diminished decisional capacity (with case example), 597–601; for disabled persons, 505, 507; effect of PSDA, 603; ethical issues of pain management, 388;
DNR orders (Cont.)
in pediatrics, 323–24; in prisons, 784; research needed into timing and decision making, 475
Dobson, M., 144
Doka, K., 67, 69, 70, 211, 425, 857
Dombeck, M., 196–98
Donor programs, 633
"Do Not Hospitalize" orders, 635
Double effect, principle of, in pain management, 388–89,
739, 750
Double H Ranch Hole in the
Woods Camp, 648
Dougy Center, Oregon, 586
DSM IV (Diagnostic and
Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders, 4th ed.), Multiaxial Assessment, 362, 366,
665
Dual process theory, oscillation,
352–53
Due process protections,
740–41, 748
Durable power of attorney for healthcare, 176, 217–18, 635,
733; see also
Advance
directives
Dying and death: as catalyst for life review, 597–94;
conscious, 57, as control-able, avoidable obstacle to be overcome, 135, 172;
delaying by modern technology, 135–36, 152, 176–77,
217, 302–3, 409, 410, 464,
598, 611, 725, 737, 753, 760, 815–16, 823; denial by medical culture, 133; as developmental stage of human life cycle, 27; difficulty of accurate prognosis,
108; difficulty of defining,
conceptual ambiguity of,
794–95; as “failure of medicine,” 100, 102, 112, 477; fear of death and/or afterlife, 282,
298; as focus of legal interventions, 731; as frequent and familiar visitor, 130–33;
imminence as diminishment of self, 132–34, 484; limits of science, 135–36; meaning as contextual, 128–29; meaning making as central in, 31, 172;
as merciful release or being robbed of unlived life, 351;
metaphor for, use with children, 326, 337; in prison,
609; as reminder of importance of living authentically,
478; as tame, 131; top causes of, 411; views in Victorian times, 132–33;
where death occurs, 410–11;
see also Social workers,
facjng own mortality
Earthquakes, Turkey, India, and
Armenia, 662–63, 672
Education for Physicians in
End of Life Care (EPEC), 172, 477, 547, 767
Education issues: advance directives, 774–75; cultural and ethnic differences, 842;
effort required by PSDA
(Patient Self-Determination Act), 762, 771; foreign language versions of educational materials, 476; gender-related implications, 221;
hospice care, 159; interdisciplinary teams, 167; managed care threat to existing model of social work education, 840;
marginalization of the
dying and bereaved, 474;
older people, 355–56; pain
management and coping,
397–98; palliative care, 420,
422; palliative care access for disabled persons, 506; as part of social workers’ self-care, 862; physicians, 819; social work in end-of-life
care, 838; staff, 315; support for, 828
Egnew, T. R., xix–xxvi,
102–25
Ego in mourning, 247
Elderly. See
Older people
Elijah the prophet (“wounded healer” story), 34–35
Ellis, K., 628–40
ELNEC (End of Life Nursing Education Consortium), 477
Email groups, 542; see also
Groups, online
Emergency rooms of hospitals,
816
Empathy: as caring manner,
164; in palliative care, 36–37;
requiring supervision and training, 310
Enders, S., 609–26
End of life: definition of, 108;
difficulty of defining,
conceptual ambiguity,
794–95
End-of-life care: for aging U.S.
population, xix, 409, 838–39;
Americans increasingly articulating desires for, 157, 410;
challenges related to managed care, 840; choices limited by nature of healthcare reimbursement, 815;
core competencies defined,
843; dying alone as antithesis of good care, 782; few hospitals offering, 7; focus questions for contributors to this book, 7; improvement, growing awareness of need
for, 136–37; improvement, recommendations for, 413–14;
journals routinely
discussing, list of, 854;
medical culture ill suited to,
137; need for training in, 62;
necess of education in cultural and ethnic differences, 842; opportunities for social work leadership contributions, 832–33; poor grade in Report on Dying in America Today, 838;
requiring full repertoire of social work modalities, 827;
role of law as pervasive, 730,
753; as term of recent origin,
815; treatments prolonging life, 152, 172, 176–77, 217,
302–3, 409, 410, 464, 498,
611, 725, 737, 753, 761,
815–16, 823; treatments
tending toward life-
extending process, 172;
trends, influences, and issues
in, 171–72, 410–11; weighing treatments against suffering and expense, 816; see also Caregivers; Hospice care; Palliative care
End-of-Life Demonstration Project, 137
Endurance, 30, 31, 54
EPEC (Education for Physicians in End of Life Care), 172, 477, 547, 767
Epstein, M., 198, 199
Erikson, E., 486
Etrasound, L., 499–531
Ethical issues: artificial life supports, suicide, and euthanasia, 52, 115–36, 171, 176–77, 217, 773; balance of, 331; bioethical principles and associated obligations, 174, 592, 594–97; clinical ethics, 388; critical social-work skills, 185; decisional capacity of patient, surrogate decision maker, 175, 176, 465, 733; decisional capacity (with case example), 597–601; definitions, 593; dilemmas of medicalized versus patient-centered care, 101; disabled persons’ right to know truth of situation, 502; disclosure to patient of seriousness of condition, 172; early policy effort on stopping unwanted treatment, 816–17; gender in moral dilemmas and decision making, 271–18; good compared to “right,” 593; justice versus care when perspectives differ, 104–65, 594; online resources, 547; medical futility, 179–83, 538–9, 599–601; medical prolongation of life at cost of quality of life, 152, 176–77, 217, 302–3, 409, 410, 464, 598, 611, 715, 737, 753, 761, 815–16, 823; models of ethical decision making, 173–74; need for practical steps, xix–xx; pain and symptom management, 587–91; physician-assisted suicide, 177–79; as potential area of research, 811; prevention, 82; public guardians of disabled persons, 505–6; recommendations for social work, 83–84; role of culture (with case example), 601–3, 604, 605; social work perspective contributing leadership, 833; suitability of social workers for involvement in, 172; surrogate decision makers, 175, 176, 465, 504–5, 532, 562, 573, 740–41, 764; technology transforming catastrophic illness into chronic illness, 8, 171, 286, 410, 773, 815, 839; underdeveloped research areas, 802–3; see also Advance directives, Autonomy, Euthanasia; Values and attitudes
Ethnicities. See Determinism; Minorities; Multicultural issues
Ethnography: description and advantages of, 22–23; guidelines, 28–29; of professional caregiving, 27–29; of suffering, 23–27; see also Stories, as meaning, continuity, sense of identity
Euthanasia: compared to double-effect intervention for pain relief, 388–89; compared to physician-assisted suicide, 177, 757; double-effect, pain relief hastening death, 739–40; involuntary, 386; “letting nature take its course,” 773; passive, 767, 773; voluntary/active, 707; see also Artificial life support
Expense of care. See Financial issues
Fadiman, A., 453
Faith, 426; see also Spirituality and religion
Faith healers, curanderos (case example), 439, 453–54, 458–59
Families: discussions and interventions for pain management, 397, 398, 399; in early stage of mourning, 576–77; facing catastrophic illness, 51; facing medical bankruptcy, 82; openness to help in bereavement, 573; patients’ difficulties speaking with loved ones about their condition, 510; as potential area for research, 806; roles of, in cases of transplantation, 683–86; social workers’ role in caring for, 548, 560–69; support groups as substitute/extensional holding environment, 511; underdeveloped research areas, 802–3; visits to prisoners, 613–14, 621–22; see also Caregivers; Children
Family assessment: conducting, 548–50; conflicts and communication problems (case example), 551; coping history, strengths, and emotional responses, 558–60; counseling and therapy, 561–62; cultural values and beliefs, 534–56; developmental stage of client and family, 533–54; discharge planning, care transitions, and referrals (with case example), 560, 564–65; factors in, xxiii; family acceptance of advance directive (case example), 552–53; family conferences (with case example), 562–65; mental health risk in end-of-life care, 363–65; nursing home placement, guilt of spouse for (case example), 556–57; past and current medical situation, 550–51; preparing caregivers for end-of-life care responsibilities, 565–66; previous experiences with illness, disability, or death, 557–58; socioeconomic factors and resources, 560–61; spirituality and religion, 556–57; structure, roles, and relationships (with case example), 531–33
Family Unity (retreat program): benefits, 657–58; building sense of community, 650–53, 658, 665; “burden bag,” 652, 655; description and case example, 642–43; enhancing family functioning, 649–50; evolution of, 648–49; experiential interventions, 650–53; “family boats” and boat ceremony, 652, 655; Family Unity box, 653, 656; legacy building, 650; moving from fear to mastery (with case example), 651–53, 658; reflection service, 655–56; resiliency and empowerment, 658; rituals, 653–57; see also HIV-affected patients and families

Farber, A., 102–25
Farber, S., 102–25
Farley, W., 32
Fatigue, 553
Fear, 122, 282, 298, 340
Feifel, H., 138
Felton, S., 166–67
Ferris, F., 411, 412
Fetuses, protection of (state interest), 736
“FICA: A Spiritual Assessment,” 194
“Fight or flight” response, 64, 66, 74, 400
Figley, C., 852
Financial issues: ability to obtain necessary medications, 394; aging of baby-boomer generation, xix, 409, 838–39; Americans’ concern about expense of dying, fear of medical bankruptcy, 410, 520; bereavement support, 822; burden on family resources, xxii, 533; for cancer patients, 704; cost of hospice care, 415, 418; cost of inmate medical care, 611, 618; disparities in access to care for poor and uninsured, 816; early hospice care unreimbursed, 817; hospice care, 818–19; innovations in care, 822–23; need for knowledge of, xxi; palliative care, trend toward, 820–21; policy and payment changes, 826–17; poverty as barrier to optimal health care, 468; reimbursement issues for noncurative hospice care or palliative care, 7, 816, 817, 821; of serious, disabling illness for people of working age, 278–79; social work action plan, 845; socioeconomic factors and resources, 360–61; suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 124; transformation of patient needs, 815–16, 823; unreimbursed costs to caregivers, 820; see also Medicare
Fineberg, I. C., 675–92
Folkman, J., 64–65
Folkman, S., 575–76
Forbes, S., 631
Foster, Z., 825–36
Foucault, M., 162
Foundations. See Professional organizations and foundations
Frank, A. W., 51, 120
Frank, B., 634
Frank, S. H., 473
Fraser, V., 634
Freeman, H. P., 444
Friedman, E., 464
Friend, R. A., 485
Fulton, R., 848, 858, 859, 865
Funeral Consumers Alliance, 633
Funeral directors, funeral homes, 572, 578, 633
Funerals, 576, 577
Furman, E., 142
Garrett, A., 198
Gays and lesbians: advance directives, 493; age and identity development considerations, 483; aging successfully, “crisis competence,” 484–85; ambivalence about sexual orientation (case example), 490–91; child custody issues for surviving parent, 493; confrontation, shame, regret, and self-loathing (case example), 491–92; denial of visitation rights, 495; depression at imminent loss of partner (case example), 487–88; despondence and anger in nursing homes (case example), 489–90; discrimination as question needing investigation, 99; as disenfranchised grievers, 454; ego psychology, object relations, and attachment theory, 493; gay identity as withdrawal of God’s love, 454; guidelines for social workers, 492–94; guilt feeling of partners (case example), 488–90; homo- phobia, 482–83, 485; internalization of doctrinal condemnation of homosexuality, 485–86; legal issues, 493; marginalization and pain relief issues, 385; partners and decision-making power, 686; reconciliation between father and gay son (case example), 432–33; resolving issues of identity and ego integrity, 486; respectful death with family and associate support (case example), 494; respecting choices and struggles, 495; views of life after death, 494
Gender issues: clinical practice implications, 219–21; coping strategies, 216; culturally as well as biologically constructed phenomenon, 209; daughters with power of attorney for healthcare for parents, 217–18; death anxiety, 213; educational implications, 222; intersection with cultural expectations, 208; intervention efforts, 219; male-female differences in bereavement help sought, 573; middle-aged children experiencing loss of parent, 206; occupational role relationships on interdisciplinary teams, 165; policy implications, 220–21;
as potential area for research, 99, 852; relational theory, 213–15; research findings on bereavement, 201–13; in September 11 tragedy, 218; social stratification of gender and death, 210–11; support groups, gender-specific, 517–18; theory and research, 207–9; trauma, death, and bereavement in workplaces, 215–16, 218–19; for twenty-first century, 215–19; visitors to male versus female inmates, 614; women as caregivers and hospice volunteers, 210; women as long-term caregivers, 629; women's movement, 146, 865; women vulnerable to undertreatment for pain, 383, 384, 476, 718

Generalized anxiety disorder, 377
Genocide, 32–33
George, J. K., 781, 801
Gerbino, S., 593–607, 835
Gershwin, I., 243–44
Gessert, C., 631
Ghosts and spirits, 258
Gillham, J., 588
Glajchen, M., 835
Glaser, B., 138
God representation, 195–96
“Good death” compared to respectful death, 102–3, 817
Gorer, G., 133, 138
Gramsci, A., 354
Graves, gravemarkers, tombstones, 131, 132, 140, 206–7, 210, 259
Grief. See Bereavement/grief/mourning
Grief, disenfranchised. See Disenfranchised grief
Griffith, J. L., 101–92
Griffith, M. E., 191–92
Grinnell, R. M., 797
Groopman, J., 58, 66, 68
Groups, clinical practice with: advantages of, 270; attendance policies, 521; benefits of, 520, 510–13, 455; composition of various group membership types, 315–19; dealing with death of a member, 527–29, 539–40; dropouts, 525; for dying children, 335; formation considerations, 513–22; group dynamics, 509–10; member selection, 516–21; rules, 521–22; setting, considerations for patients, bereaved, and institutions, 513–15; social work history in, 508; stage one, orientation/together as individuals, 522–23; stage two, formation/conflict, 524–25; stage three, consolidation/resolution, 525–26; stage four, winding down and termination, 526–27; structure and duration, 519; see also Support groups
Groups, online: benefits, 529, 530–31, 540–41, 542, 545; clinical issues, 543; concerns for facilitators, 541; format and guidelines, 541, 542; group management issues, 543–44; increasing use of, 529–30, 534–35; licensing, 544; practical matters, 541–42; recruitment, screening, and assessment, 540–41; reimbursement, liability, and state regulations, 544; research, need for, 535; research, suggestions for, 545
Groups, telephone: benefits, 529–30, 538–39, 540–41, 542, 545; clinical issues, 543; concerns for facilitators, 541; format and guidelines, 541, 542; group management issues, 543–44; increasing use of, 529–30, 534–35; licensing, 544; practical matters, 541–42; recruitment, screening, and assessment, 540–41; reimbursement, liability, and state regulations, 544; research, need for, 535; research, suggestions for, 545
Handicapped individuals. See Disabilities, persons with Handprints, 326
Harper, B. C., 835
Harris, A., 426
Headstones. See Graves, gravemarkers, tombstones
Healing, 35, 456–37
Healthcare proxies, 597, 598, 655, 688–89, 733–34, 764; see also Advance directives
Health care system: administration, social work action plan for, 545; discrimination inherent in misallocation of resources, 751–52, 753; 840–41; discrimination, social worker’s duty to challenge, 443–48; disparities in care for poor and uninsured, 816; disparities in care for rural versus urban Americans, 841; emergency rooms, 816; evolving social work roles, 826–27; homophobia in, 485; ill suited to end-of-life care, 137; need for leadership and patient-centered change, 816; origins of social work, 825–26; as potential area of research, 812; unprepared for aging of U.S. population, 839; see also Assessment, of larger contexts and institutions; Medical culture
Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPPA), 799
Help, as first request by sick and dying patients, 69
“Helping him cry” story, 69
Helplessness, 558, 559, 664
Hematopoietic cell transplantation. See Transplantation
Henderson, S., 593–607
Hendrix, L., 443
Herman-Bertsch, J., 104
Herman, J., 844, 555, 837
Hinduism: belief in transmigration of souls, 258; master’s parable of salt, 39–40
HIPPA (Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act), 799

Index 881

Downloaded from cupola.columbia.edu
Hispanics/Latinos: advance directives, lower prevalence of, and suspicion of health care system, 634, 724; disparities in quality of health care, 444; disproportionate numbers incarcerated, 611; expressions of bereavement/grief/mourning, 258; impeded access to hospice care, 417, 445; inability to obtain opioid analgesics, 394, 444, 465; population projections, 440, 441; prohibited discussion of terminal diagnosis, 773; vulnerability to undertreatment for pain, 383, 718; see also Multicultural issues

History, perspective of: culture on, 482; facing isolation, 199–202; Double H Ranch Hole in the Woods (retreat program), 648; expanded literature on, 35–36

HIV-affected patients and families: burden of caretaking, anger, resentment, grief, 646–47; case example of “Adam,” 199–202; Double H Ranch Hole in the Woods Camp, 648; expanded literature on, 482; facing isolation, shame, and stigma, 645–46; feeling guilt and anticipatory loss, 645; grief and trauma manifested, 644–45; inadequate research on difficulties, 645; International Conference on AIDS, 643; as people of color facing poverty and crime, 645; projections of number of orphans, 644; psychological resilience on part of gay men, 485–86; separation of orphaned siblings, 647; support systems existing, 644; women, not gay men, as more numerous victims, 207; see also Family Unity (retreat program)

Hockley, R., 838

Hoffman, R., 57–71

“Holding environment,” 39, 310–12, 511

Hole in the Woods Camp (Double H Ranch), 648

Holocaust, 32–33

Homelessness, 468

Homophobia, 482–83, 485

hooks, b., 24

Hope: before bilateral mastectomy (case example), 283; exceeding realistic expectation, 324; in face of uncertainty, 65; feeding denial and resistance, 304; as gain out of loss, 13–14; pursuing every avenue of cure, 68; role in dying process, 304–7; role in interdisciplinary teams, 307–9; sustaining, with continuing loss, 55

Hospice Benefit (Medicare), 8–9, 152, 305, 415

Hospice care: attitudes of nursing home staff toward, 636–37; barriers to, 819; beginnings in England, establishment in U.S., 135, 121–22, 827–28; bereavement programs, 779–80; care in first hospices unreimbursed, 817; as community-based interdisciplinary teams, 133–54; conforming with most Americans’ wishes for end-of-life care, 157; cost issues with technologically intensive care, 415; coverage by insurance plans and Medicaid, 818; for disabled persons, 306; discrimination against home health aide, 818; for prisoners, 606–17, 622, 783, 785; recognizing death as natural conclusion to life cycle, 305; relinquishment of right to curative benefits, 819, 821; residents’ savings used up, 819–20; short median stays, death within short time, 819; and six-month prognosis requirement, 37–39, 152, 305, 415, 819; social work contributions, opportunities for, 819; social workers, cost benefits of involvement, 155; social workers’ lack of training and reduced roles, 153–54; social workers’ role, 155–56; social work, future for profession in, 156–57; social work outcomes, documented positive, 154–55; social work outcomes, ongoing measurements of, 156; underserved populations, 158, 159, 417–18, 445; undifferentiation of, 415–16; viewed by families as “giving up,” 416–17; viewed by physicians as “failure,” 100, 102, 113, 152, 416; see also Nursing homes; Palliative care

“Hospital psychosis,” 285

Hospital settings: emergency rooms, 816; need for humanization, 726; need for palliative care programs in, 414; percent of all deaths occur-
Illness, catastrophic, suggested ICD-10 Classification of Mental and Behavioral Disorders: Clinical Descriptions and Diagnostic Guidelines, 665, 666

Illness: catastrophic, suggested therapeutic practices, 54–55; catastrophic, technology transforming into chronic, 8, 171, 286, 410, 773, 815, 839; multicultural explanatory models for, 452–54; symptoms near time of death as potential research area, 827–8; also see Cancer; HIV-affected patients and families

Illness, chronic, 8, 171, 286, 410, 773, 815, 839

Illness, trajectory of (entries in order of progression): when does end of life begin?, 273–74, 295–96; diagnosis and decision, 274–75; confusion and impersonality of health care system, 275; role of social worker, 276; implications for different patients, 276–79; site of disease and implications, 277; similar diagnoses, different reverberations, 277; site of disease and further implications, 278; implications of being seriously ill, 278–79; avoiding or delaying treatment, 279–81; crisis without warning, 281; treatment process, expectations and anxieties, 281–83; hope, 283; resignation, 283; anger and depression, 282, 283–84; assigning blame, 284; ambivalence, 284–85; losing control, 285–87; postsurgery, 287; path of chronic illness, 288; progression, plateaus, disruptions in return to “normalcy,” 288–89; normalization “jet lag,” 289–90; back to “normal,” 290–93; survival guilt, 291–92; discovery of “silver lining,” 293–94; turn for the worse, 294; last stop, clinical trials, 294–95; when doctors have nothing more to offer, 295–96

Imagery and visualization, 402–3, 568, 702

Imani, T., 189, 196, 197

India, earthquake, 663, 672

Informed consent, 594, 596, 598

Institute of Medicine, 477, 836

Insurance, private: disparity in coverage in America, large numbers uninsured, 819, 841; informal care by families as hidden subsidy, 820; Kaiser Permanente, 818, 822–23; lack of; and need for, coverage for bereavement support, 822; lack of coverage as barrier to palliative care, 821; lack of coverage as marginalizing, 468; for online and telephone support groups, 544; long-term care, 820; noncoverage for out-of-pocket expenses, 820; not covering noncurative hospice care, 816, 817; refusal to cover at-home care, 49, 50; also see Managed care; Medicare

Interdisciplinary teams: acceptance of decisions divergent from own beliefs, 718; “best interest” judgment calls, 467, 504; camaraderie and companionship in adversity, 857; Chantler’s vision of, 163; collaboration and positive outcomes, correlation, 166, 314–15; in community-based hospice care, 153–54; compared to multidisciplinary, 167–68; competition, control, power, leadership, communication, and collaboration issues, xxix, 66, 100, 168–69, 856; countering impulses of medical culture, 110; debriefings, 83–86, 836–7; dissonance with dysfunctional patient and family, 166; diversity reflecting served community, 715; education necessary for, 107, 167; example of general surgery service at university hospital, 166–67; failures of, 62, 63; family conferences, 562–65, 689; gender-related implications, 221; hindrances of, 118–19; hope, role of, 307–9; in hospice care, 167–68; justice versus care when perspectives differ, 164–65, 594; need for common values and goals, xxi; in palliative care, 412; in prisons for palliative care, 620–21; respectful death care model, study of, 105–6; respectful death care model, system of care in, 118–19; role blurring, conflict, and skepticism, 78a, 851; roles and approaches for physicians, nurses, and social workers, xx, 163–66, 168; selection of primary focus of intervention for each member, 851; self-care through teamwork and “cappuccino therapy,” 862; social work, advantages of, in hospice, 156; social worker as barometer and cheerleader for suffering colleagues, 67; social worker as collaborator, 115–16; social workers communicating patient’s fears, hopes, wishes for end-of-life care, 774; social workers identifying ethical conflicts, 607, 833;
Interdisciplinary teams (Cont.)

social workers, need for active engagement in, 835; social workers’ struggle for recognition on, 829–30; social workers’ unique and vital roles, 793; success, respect, and shared decision making, 169; see also Hospital settings

International Conference on AIDS, 643

Internet: bulletin board groups, 542; chat groups, 542; email groups, 542; evaluating information on websites, 543–44; online telehealth consultation, 535; Listserv network, 834; mutual aid groups and websites, 582; resources for end-of-life care, 546–47; see also Websites

Interviewing: assessment and engagement with spirituality and religion, 194–95; caution on mere data collection, 121; for ecological assessment, xxii; focus on illness in context of client’s lives, 121; questions for a religious history, 106–8; as small qualitative research project, 99; suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 123–25; see also Respectful death care model

Involuntary euthanasia, 389

Isolation, psychological and emotional: for cancer patients, 696; with geographic dislocation for transplantation patients and families, 686–87; of HIV-affected patients and families, 645–46; of the ill and their families, 50; of inmates of prisons, 624–25; mediating with sense of community, 581; of nursing home residents, 638–39; of patient and families by medical culture, 57; reduction through sense of trust and safety, 657; reduction with participation in support groups, 568, 581, 573, 522; for transplantation patients, 680; witnessing as relief to fears of abandonment, 122

Itin, C., 642–59

Jackson, D. A., 139

Jacobs, C., 188–203

Jacobsen, P., 401

Jaycox, L., 588

Jennings, B., 172

Johnson, Robert Wood, Foundation, 137, 159, 609–10, 828, 838

Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO), 381, 842–43

Jones, R., 748

Jordan, A. R., 548–69

Journals and diaries, 326, 403

Judaism: concern about pain interventions, 395; Elijah the prophet (“wounded healer” story), 34–35; Mi Sheberach prayer, 68; mourning for week of Shiva, 258–59, 372; perspective on suffering, 25

Justice, 388, 594, 599–601

Kaiser Permanente, 818, 822–23

Kamisar, Y., 743, 752

Kardiner, A., 855

Karger, W., 273–96

Kark, P., 786

Karl, J., 196–98

Kastenbaum, R., 213

Kearney, M., 859–60

Kevorkian, J., 768

Kirk, G., 448

Klass, D., 144

Klein, M., 248–50

Kleinman, A., 23, 26, 29, 33

Kochanowski, J., 139

Koenig, B., 605–6

Kramer, B. J., 792–812

Kreier, R., 451

Kühler-Ross, E., 133, 134, 211, 817, 861, 864

Kuhl, D., 851

Kushner, H., 69

Laird, J., 29

Lambryak, M., 835

Langer, L., 32–33

Last Acts Coalition, 547, 638, 838, 842

Latinos. See Hispanics/Latinos

Leadership in social work: advancing, 830–31; assertion and solidification of roles and contributions, 825; Brumley’s innovative palliative care program at Kaiser Permanente, 822–23; building competency for end-of-life care, 842–43; call to action, 847–49; Chacchke’s example, 831–32; change in attitudes and values, 825; changes in policy and practice, 8, 9, 15; examples of, 830–31, 834–35; exerting as matter of self-care, 863; expertise advancing practice, 832–33; Foster’s example, 827–29; Internet Listserv network, 834; NYU Medical Center programs, 831, 833–34; organizations providing, 842–43; pain and symptom management, 397; palliative care, 420; palliative care evaluation, 421; policy change in end-of-life care, 9; proactive community outreach, 833–34; role models, 835; Smith College School for Social Work course in, 830; Soros Foundation Open Society Institute’s Project on Death in America, 137–38, 421, 547, 610, 834; support groups and facilitators, 599, 522, 523, 526, 527, 528–29, 530–31; unified agenda, 840; visibility and recognition, 830; see also Social work, future of

Lee, J. A., 485, 780

Legal issues: Compassion in Dying v. Washington, 745; Cruzan v. Harmon and Cruzan v. Director, Missouri

Downloaded from cupola.columbia.edu
Life expectancy: aging baby-boomer generation, xix, 409, 838–39; extension of, 433;
formerly fatal illnesses now chronic, 8, 171, 286, 410, 777, 818, 839
Life reviews, 193, 333–34, 361, 593–94, 613
Life support. See Artificial life support
Lifton, R. J., 145
Lindbergh, A.M., 260
Lindemann, E., 141, 254
Linder, J., 696–721
Lifton, R. J., 145
Lindbergh, A.M., 260
Lindemann, E., 141, 254
Linder, J., 696–721
Linking objects, mementos of deceased, 251–52
Living wills, 176, 733–34, 763–64; see also Advance directives
Llewellyn, N., 132
Lo, B., 597
Loewald, H., 247
Lofland, L., 134
Long-term care, 629, 632
Long-term care insurance, 820
Loscalzo, M., 401
Lou Gehrig’s disease, 43–54
Lynn, J., 795
McCrary, S. V., 181
McGoldrick, M., 365
Mahler, M., 251
Managed care: challenges to end-of-life care, 840; controversy and mistrust of, 818;
demand for cost-effective practice, 829; impact on U.S. health care system, 839–40; possible advantage for establishing best practices, 822–23; see also Insurance, private Marginalization of the dying and bereaved: addictions, 460–73; at-risk and disenfranchised groups, 8, 9, 15, 269; clinical implications and social workers’ role, 474–75; cognitively impaired, 466–67; by death-avoidant behaviors, 464–65; diminished decision-making capacity, 465–68; disenfranchised grievers, 464; as emotional and physical distancing and withdrawal, 462, 465–64, 502; ethnic, religious, cultural, and socioeconomic influences, 468–69; homelessness, 468; need to counteract, 8; older people, 494–59; pain relief issues, 385; personal and professional implications, 477–78; policy implications, 476–77; research considerations, 475–76; with special limitations, 462; as stigmatization, 465; stigmatization, decrease, with participation in support groups, 508, 511; victims of, as traditional focus of social work professions, 463; see also Gays and lesbians; Minorities; Older people; Prisons, end-of-life care in
Marshall, C., 801
Martin, T. L., 211
Maslach, C., 550
Massage, 398, 400, 500, 631
Massie, M. J., 368, 369
Maturana, H. R., 162
Maul, F. W., 625
Mazahri, T., 165
MDS (Minimum Data Set), 654
Meaning making: bereavement as, 143, 192, 256, 351, 373; diversity of practices, 27; explanatory styles affecting behavior, 588; suffering and, 29–34; through beliefs and rituals surrounding death, 130–33; through “stories,” 120–21; as understanding of illness and challenges, 556; as universal healing need, 428; values and attitudes influencing, 98; see also Spirituality and religion
Means to a Better End: A Report on Dying in America Today, 538
Medicaid, 670, 816, 817, 819–20
Medical culture: death as enemy, dying as “failure of medicine,” 100, 102, 133, 152, 477; difficulty of coping with dying patients, 110;
Mental health issues: abandon-
Mendez, C., 162
Memory books, 650, 655
Mementos and memorials,
Meditation, 429–30, 702
Medications.  See
Medicare: aftercare hospice
Medical play with ill children,
Medical futility, 179–83, 308–9,
Medical culture (Cont.)
dilemmas of medicalized versus patient-centered care, 103, 104; embracing success and abandoning "failures," 70; focus on curative treatment regardless of cost or effectiveness, 100, 158; giving false sense of control, 135; hindering natural process of death, 136; ill suited to end-of-life care, 137; insensitivity of setting and personnel, 2, 3, 58, 59, 60, 66; isolation of patient and families, 57; perspective on suffering, 26–27; technological advances prolonging life at expense of quality of life, 152, 176–77, 217, 302–3, 409, 410, 464, 598, 611, 725, 737, 753, 761, 815–16, 823; technological imperative in, 737; technology outrunning ethical advances, 753; see also Health care system
Medical futility, 179–83, 308–9, 599–601
Medical parole, 621–22
Medical play with ill children, 331–32
Medicare: aftercare hospice programs, 518; disparities in quality of health care for minorities, 444; focus on restoration and rehabilitation, 819; Hospice Benefit and six-month prognosis, 8–9, 152, 305, 415, 819; hospice care in nursing homes, 656; as largest, most important source of health insurance, 815, 817; nursing home assessment requirements, 633–34; percent of budget spent on last year of life, 817; requiring query as to advance directives, 762–63
Medications.  See Treatments
Meditation, 429–30, 702
Mementos and memorials, 251–52, 326, 357, 377, 712
Memory books, 650, 655
Men.  See Gender issues
Mendez, C., 162
Mental health issues: abandonment of patient and families by professionals, 63–64; assessment skills, 268; cognitive behavior therapy, 588, 702; depression as possible cause of request for physician-assisted suicide, 178; disabilities, persons with, 500–503; ethical issues of autonomy, informed consent, and self-determination (with case example), 594–97, 599; factors influencing perception of pain, 387; family counseling and therapy, 560–62; "hospital psychosis," 285; lack of help in oncology program, 65, 69; online tele-health consultation, 533; marginalization of those with severe psychiatric disorders, 466; post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), 376–77; preservation of feelings of safety, 657–58, 664–65, 666–68; psychological and family-centered counseling and therapy, 587–88; reluctance to undergo treatment, 466; risk factors related to bereavement, 580; support groups compared to psychotherapy groups, 528–10; support groups for, 517, 520; therapy as form of mourning ritual, 427; see also Depression; Self-care
Menzies-Lyth, I., 854
Merman, A., 428–29
Metzler, M. H., 166–67
Meyer, J. W., 129
Michel, V., 605
Michigan Partnership for the Advancement of End-of-Life Care, 159
Miller, J. B., 214
Minding oneself, 861–63, 869
Minimum Data Set (MDS), 634
Minkov, C., 144
Minorities: American Indians, 258, 259, 441; Caribbean Islanders, 258, 365; clinicians’ fear of addiction potential, 382, 394; discrimination against, 443; discrimination against, making advance directives suspect, 737; disparities in quality of health care, 444–45, 816; fear of hospice care, 816; HIV-affected patients and families, 645; inability to obtain opioid analgesics, 394, 444, 469; population projections, 444, 447, Puerto Ricans, 258; underserved populations for hospice care, 158, 159, 477–18; vulnerability to undertreatment for pain, 383, 384, 444, 718; see also African Americans; Asians; Discrimination; Hispanics/Latinos; Multicultural issues
Missoula End-of-Life Demonstration Project, 157

886 Index
Monroe, B., xx, xxi, xxv
Mood disturbance, 367–72
Moon, M., 815
Morgan, J., 425
Morrow-Howell, N., 800
Mortality. See Dying and death; Social workers, facing own mortality
Mor, V., 637
Moss, M. S., 206, 348
Moss, S. Z., 206, 348
Mount, B., 859
Mourning. See Bereavement/grief/mourning
Moyers, B., 137, 547
Mtezuka, M., 349
Muller, W., 716
Multi-axial Assessment (DSM-IV), 362
Multicultural issues: advance directives, lower prevalence of, 774; applying cultural framework to end-of-life situation, 448–50; assessment by social worker, xxiii, 269, 450–52; authority figures, deference to and reluctance to question, 455–56; autonomy and truth telling about terminal diagnosis, 603, 773–74; conceptual framework, developing for end-of-life care, 443; connections with deceased, 217; coping styles, 613; cross-cultural communication, 454–56; cultural competence as key for social workers, 841–42; culturally sensitive models of care, need for, xxi, 410, 440–42, 450–58; culture, definition of, 442–43, 446; discussions and design of respectful end-of-life care, 8, 108–9, 110–11; dying and bereavement, 128–29; end-of-life tasks, 709; explanatory models of illness, 452–54; faith healers, curanderos (case example), 439, 453–54, 458–59; foreign language versions of educational materials, 476; grief, variations in rituals and expressions of, 208, 257–59, 372–73; language barriers, interpreters, and translators, 396, 440, 452, 459–58, 465–66, 475, 476, 686; from melting pot to cultural mosaic, 441; mental health risk in end-of-life care, 356; minorities unassimilated or unidentified with majority culture, 462–63; mourning behaviors, 577; pain management assessment, 392–93; pain relief versus clarity of mind at end of life, 709; pain, reluctance to admit to suffering from, 567; patient's view of reality taking precedence, 441; as potential area for research, 805; in prisons, 612–13; requiring transformation of institutional systems, 447–48; rituals surrounding death, 192, 424; serious illness, implications of, 279; social, economic, language barriers, 440, 465–66, 475; social worker's self-evaluation, 442; support groups for, 517; transformative questions for social workers, 446–47; transplantation and end of life, 689; traumatized children, 671–73; underserved populations for hospice care, 158, 159, 417–18
Multidisciplinary teams, 167–68; see also Interdisciplinary teams
Music, 398, 399, 400, 500
Myss, C., 436
National Cancer Institute “Fact Sheet on Depression and Cancer,” 369
National Center for Grieving Children and Families, 586
National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization (NHPCO), 154, 155, 834
National Hospice Social Work Survey, 155, 156
Native Americans. See American Indians
Neimeyer, R. A., 30, 143
Newman, J. S., 428
NHPCO (National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization), 154, 155, 834
Nicholas, P. K., 161–62
Nickman, S. L., 214
911, calls to emergency response teams, 591
Nonmaleficence as bioethical principle, 174, 182, 388, 594
Noppe, I., 206–21
Noure, H., 34–35, 859, 860
Nuland, S., 117
Nurses: approaches on interdisciplinary teams, 165–66; mostly female, 210–11; occupational role relationships on interdisciplinary teams, 165, 166
Nursing homes: challenges of managing for quality care, 658–60; demographics of patients in, 628–29; disenfranchised grief of staff nurses, 858; “Do Not Hospitalize” orders, 635; grief after death of resident, 357, 657–58; as “heaven’s waiting room,” 640; hospice care, residents not receiving, 819; hospice care, staff attitudes toward, 636–37; negative comments about terminal care, 650; neglected populations in, 271; percent of deaths in, 411, 628, 640; physical and/or cognitive decline, 629, 640; placement of loved one as wrenching decision, 631; systematic undertreatment for pain, 7, 383, 384, 444; trend toward institutionalizing persons close to death, 640
Nursing homes, social work interventions in: assessment and care plan meetings, 633–35; benefits of, 639–40; bereavement care, 637–38;
Nursing homes, social work interventions in (Cont.) challenges to, 659; hospice enrollment, 655–57; hospital transfers, 653; lack of hospice care in, 89; upon admission, for patients and families, 650–53
Nursing Leadership Consortium on End-of-Life Care, 843
Nutritional guidance, failure to provide, 60
NYU Medical Center: Doula to Accompany and Comfort program, 833–34; Palliative Care Consultation Team, 834 Obituaries, 210
Object relations in bereavement, 248–54
O'Connor, S. D., 738, 739
O'Donnell, P., 171–84
O'Donohue, J., 860–61
O'Donohue, J., 860–61
O'Donnell, P., 171–84
O'Connor, S. D., 738, 739
O'Gorman, M., 448
O'Donnell, P., 171–84
Obituaries, 210
Object relations in bereavement, 248–54
O'Connor, S. D., 738, 739
O'Donnell, P., 171–84
O'Donohue, J., 860–61
Okazawa-Rey, M., 448
Older people: bureaucratic complexity and unfairness toward, 355; continued spiritual development, 357; dehumanization, depersonalization of, 351, 354, 358; dramatic extension of lifespan, 815; education and training of social workers, 355–56; facing accumulated loss experiences, 351, 356; fail, escalating number of, 464; infantilization of, 350; living longer, facing chronic illnesses with acute episodes, 773; marginalization of, 349–54; mourning as disenfranchised grief, 349; myth of “getting used to” grief, 350; need for palliative and geriatric care, 355; need to adapt to futures, 354; perceiving pain as normal part of aging, 354; policy dimension, 354–55; as postadulthood, 349; practice implications, 356–57; problem of caregivers’ projection of fears onto, 357; as stigmatized and isolated group, 268; victims of ageism, 348–59; vulnerability to undertreatment for pain, 383, 384, 718; welfarization of, 350
Oman, D., 426
Oncology. See Cancer
Open Society Institute. See Soros Foundation
Opioid analgesics, 382, 394, 444, 469, 718
Oregon: assisted-suicide law (Death with Dignity Act), 218, 389, 747, 748, 761, 768, 769–70; Dougy Center for grieving children, 385–86
Orentlicher, D., 751
Organ donor programs, 633
Organ donor programs, 633
Orientals. See Asians
Osteosarcoma, 57–71
Otis-Green, S., 462–78
Pain and symptom management: acceptance of patient’s report of, 382, 391, 394–97; addiction, concern for, 469–73, 567, 718; affective components of pain experience, 394; assessment, 125, 268, 314–15, 391–97, 566–67; behavioral aspects of pain experience, 394–95; as best of clinical social work practice, 380, 397; caregiver’s nonadherence to plan of care, 717–19; cognitive dimension of pain, 387; 394; cognitive impairment or loss of verbal ability, complications of, 395–96; cognitive restructuring/reframing, 399–400, 397–68; complications with substance-use disorder, 472–73; constitutional issue and chilling effect of Oregon v. Ashcroft, 749; coping statements, 400, 568; distraction, 400; double effect, principle of, 388–89, 739; environmental aspects, 395; ethical issues, 387–91; as ethical mandate, 381; family decision making for, 390–91; hypnosis, 402, 568; imagery and visualization, 402–3, 568; interventions, clinical, 397–99; interventions, medical/pharmacologic, 397; involuntary euthanasia, 386; legal issues in Bergman v. Eden Medical Center, 740; legal protection for doctors for double-effect euthanasia (pain relief hastening death), 739–42; minimization or magnification through filter of family or caregivers, 386–87; as model for integration of principles, 381; operational definitions, 386–87; opioid analgesics, some pharmacies’ reluctance to stock, 394, 444, 469; palliative sedation in the imminently dying, 386; patients’ perception of, “toughing it out,” detecting, 296; pediatric, 322, 381; as potential area of research, 808–9; “redemptive” pain, 383–84; relaxation techniques, 400–401; self-monitoring with diaries and journals, 403–5; social/economic variables, 394; spiritual/existential/religious dimensions, 395; suffering and, 387; symptom relevance, 381–82; system/practitioner barriers, 382–83; terminal cancer patients, 709; transplant patients, 687–88; undertreatment, groups vulnerable to, 7, 383, 384, 444, 718; see also Palliative care
Palliative care: in acute-care setting, withdrawal of treatment, 177; barriers to, 821; benefits to health care system, 422–23; disabilities, persons with, access to care, 503–7; in face of rejection and hostile challenge, 69–70; failures of oncological professionals, 67, 68–69; few physicians certified in, 8; goals and ideals, 9, 71, 150, 409, 411; hospice care, comparison to, 413; hospice settings, barriers to care, 413;
Peripheral stem cell transplantation. See Stem cell transplantation

415; innovative program of Kaiser Permanente, 522–23; Last Acts Coalition concept and precepts of, 842; medical education only beginning to address, 816; need for, 411, 414, 415, 418–19; origin of term, 412; physicians melding with families’ strength, 58; in prisons, through interdisciplinary teams, 620–21; problems with interdisciplinary teams, 168; providing empathy, compassion, sharing of suffering, xx–xxii, 54–57; providing “holding environment,” 39; providing personal connection, xx; question of legal right to, 749–50; question of terminal sedation and physician-assisted suicide, 750, 751; reports on, 413; similarities to prison work, 780–82; social workers’ inadequate preparation for, xx–xxi; social workers’ role in, 208, 409, 419–21, 422; team specialization, 412; trend toward, 820–21; typical programs and comprehensive model, 442; see also Hospice care; Pain and symptom management

Panic attacks, air hunger, 703

Papadatou, D., 857–58
Parkes, C. M., 143, 255, 580
Parkinson, F., 855
Partners in Care Foundation, 822–23
Passive euthanasia, 767, 773
Pathfinders self-care program, 185
Patient’s Bill of Rights (American Hospital Association), 152
Patient Self-Determination Act (PSDA), 467, 476, 603–6, 612, 613, 733–34, 761, 762
Pattison, E. M., 483
Payne, R., 444
Pellegrino, E., 193
Peripheral stem cell transplantation. See Stem cell transplantation

Personal experience, suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 125
Petrieck, A. C., 677
Phillips, J. M., 484
Phillips, S., 27–28
Photographs and albums, 326, 650, 655
Physician-assisted suicide: as adjunct to adequate pain management at end of life, 748; arguments against, 178, 768; arguments for, 768–69; autonomy, self-determination, and rational control of dying, 752–53; comparison to euthanasia, 177, 767; Compassion in Dying v. Washington, 745; concern over depression and relationship to suicide, 737; constitutional background, 744–47; description of, 389; as discriminatory and legally unacceptable, 736; double-effect pain medication and potential criminal liability, 750; due process protections, 748; ethical issues, 177–79; gender issues in decision making, 218; Kevorkian, J., 768; leading to legislation, 137; legal issues confusing, 748; potential criminal liability, 177, 768; as request to be remembered, 242; as spiritual expression, 188–89; usefulness of, 73
Popkin, M. K., 368, 369
Postadults, 349
Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), 85, 376–77, 850
Potash, J., 786
Power issues: on interdisciplinary teams, 168; for professional organizations, 162
Power of attorney for healthcare, 176, 217–18, 635, 733; see also Advance directives
Prayer, 196, 259, 399, 430–31
Pregnancy loss, association with depression of, 376
Petrisek, A. C., 637
Pieta of Michelangelo, 139
Planned Parenthood v. Casey, 745
Play with ill children, 322–33
Poetry: as communication with lost loved ones, 22–23, 49–41; as request to be remembered, 242; as spiritual expression, 188–89; usefulness of, 73
Play with ill children, 332–33

Index 889

bereaved, 579; medical profession’s ethical integrity (state interest), 736; protecting patients from truth of diagnosis, 704; reluctance to “abandon” patients to hospice care team, 819, 821; sharing of responsibility by, 165; use of term “discipline,” 162–63; see also Medical culture

Piaget, J., 234
Pietà of Michelangelo, 139
Planned Parenthood v. Casey, 745
Play with ill children, 322–33
Poetry: as communication with lost loved ones, 22–23, 49–41; as request to be remembered, 242; as spiritual expression, 188–89; usefulness of, 73

Power issues: on interdisciplinary teams, 168; for professional organizations, 162
Power of attorney for healthcare, 176, 217–18, 635, 733; see also Advance directives
Prayer, 196, 259, 399, 430–31
Pregnancy loss, association with isolated grief, 464
Preparatory play with ill children, 322–33
The President’s Commission for the Study of Ethical Problems in Medicine and Biomedical Research, 177, 180
Prisons, end-of-life care in: advance directives, 784; advantages of social workers in cell blocks, 779–80; advocacy of amelioration of prison and sentencing systems, 699–20; aging and ill falling victim to intimidation or violence, 614; aging prisoner population serving longer sentences, 610–12, 788;
Prisons, end-of-life care in (Cont.) community and family, sense of, 785, 786, 788–89; death as normal process, 786; dehumanizing settings, 277; discharge planning, 623; disenfranchised grief in, 787; DNR orders as approval of lesser standard of care, 784; duty of care, positive and negative effects, 784–85; dying alone as antithesis of good care, 782–83; family visits, 613–14; feelings of isolation, 624–25; framing work of care, 785–89; hospice and palliative care (with case example), 616–17; hospice care for terminally ill prisoners, 783; inmates among most vulnerable populations, 625; inmates as causes of own distress, 779; lack of understanding of meaning of advance directives, 625; loneliness and finality of death, 782; loss as familiar and ubiquitous, 618; magnification of impact of debilitating illnesses, 626; medical parole or family visits for terminally ill, 621–22; multicultural issues, 622–23; need for research, 625; need to restructure prison health care system, 611–12; obstacles to social work or ecological perspective, 779; palliative care, similarities to prison work, 780–82; palliative care through interdisciplinary teams, 620–21; prisoners’ view of death in prison, 624–25; respect for individuals, 786–87; rights of prisoners, 622–23; social workers as facilitators, 615–16; social workers’ role for terminally ill inmates (with case example), 623–24, 625; social work, key areas for contribution, 781–82; social work’s unique role, 778–80, 789; structure and organization, 785; sudden death in, 789; support groups for, 517; suspicion of system, 619; trained inmates helping with care, 417, 616–17; women, 614
Privacy and confidentiality issues, xxiv, 61, 521
Professional organizations and foundations: action plan, 845; AOSW (Association of Oncology Social Work), 179, 835; Association of Oncology Social Work (AOSW), 179, 835; Canadian Hospice Palliative Care Association (CHPCA), 411, 412; Cancer Care (social work agency), 834, 835; Compassionate Friends (support groups), 145, 582; Compassion in Dying organization, 745, 768; Council on Ethical and Judicial Affairs, 82, 764; Double H Ranch Hole in the Woods Camp, 648; Dougy Center, Oregon, 586; Education for Physicians in End of Life Care (EPEC), 172, 477, 547, 767; End-of-Life Demonstration Project, 137; End of Life Nursing Education Consortium (ELNEC), 477, Funerary Consumers Alliance, 633; Human Rights Coalition, 493; Institute of Medicine, 477, 536; Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health-care Organizations (JCAHO), 381, 542–43; Michigan Partnership for the Advancement of End-of-Life Care, 159; Missoula End-of-Life Demonstration Project, 137; National Association of Social Workers (NASW), xxiv–xxvi, 172–73, 557–58, 624, 544, 547, 607, 770, 840–42; National Center for Grieving Children and Families, 586; National Hospice and Palliative Care Organization (NHPCO), 154, 155, 534; Pathfinders self-care program, 585; Project on Death in America, 157–58, 421, 547, 610, 834, 835; Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, 137, 159, 609–10, 528, 838; Social Work Leadership Awards, 843; Social Work Leadership Summit on End-of-Life and Palliative Care, 421, 843; Social Work Summit on End of Life and Palliative Care, 843; Society for Social Work Leadership in Health Care, 843; Soros Foundation, 137–38, 421, 547, 610, 834; TEAM (Together Everyone Achieves More) services, 642; United Hospital Fund, 828; Victoria Hospice Society (British Columbia), 652; West Coast Center for Palliative Care and Research, UC Davis, 622; Widowed Persons Service (AARP), 145, 583; see also Family Unity (retreat program)
Professions, description of, 162
Project on Death in America: Social Work Leadership Awards, 843; of Soros Foundation Open Society Institute, 137–38, 421, 547, 610, 834, 843
Proxy directives, 597, 598, 635, 733–34, 764
PSCT (peripheral stem cell transplantation). See Transplantation
PSDA (Patient Self-Determination Act), 467, 476, 603–6, 632, 633, 733–34, 761, 762
Psychosocial issues. See Family assessment; Mental health issues
Public guardians of disabled persons, 525–26
Puerto Ricans, expressions of bereavement/grief/mourning, 258
“Quest stories,” 31–32
Quill v. Vacco, 746–47
Quinlan, K. A., 135, 566
Index 891

Rando, T., 32, 68, 218, 365, 367, 435
Raphael, B., 144, 587, 860
Raymer, M., 150–59
Reconciliation, suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 125
Recreation, 651–52
Reese, D., 150–59
Referrals, 158, 182, 270, 548–49, 560, 564–65
Rehnquist, W. H., 747
Reid, J. D., 485
Reinhart, S., 745
Reivich, K., 588
Relational theory, 220, 227–28
Relationships: authentic, on part of clinician, 265–66; social support as, 575; as spiritual commitment, 102; suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 124–25
Relaxation techniques, 400–401, 500, 702
Relf, M., 580
Religion: Buddhist perspective on suffering, 24; Christian perspective on death and suffering, 24–25, 131–32; compared to spirituality, 191–92, 425–26; role in end-of-life care, 444–55; see also Judaism; Spirituality and religion
Remen, R. N., 67, 68, 69, 858
Renzenbrink, I., 848–66
Resch, N., 206
Research in social work conceptual frameworks: absence as detrimental to professional standing, 795–94; action plan, 844; analytical pitfalls in literature, 208–9; arenas, medical and non-medical, 796f; barrier to, 795–94; conceptual and methodological issues, 803–2; findings on bereavement, 211–13; funding, 799; journals in end-of-life care, 797, 804; online and telephone support groups, 535, 545; marginalization of the dying and bereaved, 475–76; need for empirical studies, scientific foundation of practice, 797; 794; need for social work view in addition to medical, 792–93; policy analysis and development, 803; potential areas for, 805–12; recommended scope across multiple settings, 795–96; on roles of nursing home social workers, 639; social workers as contributing partners, 779–79; social workers as knowledge creators and disseminators, 798–99; social workers as research consumer, 797; respected consumer, 768–84; within correctional setting, 625; see also Assessment, of larger contexts and institutions; Theory, issues of Resignation, 283
Resilience, 657, 665
Resources: social worker’s knowledge of, xxiii; see also Financial issues
Respectful death: Americans’ preference not to be hooked up to machines, 410; aspects of, xvi, 172; care at home, 410; compared to “good death,” 102–3, 817; debates over assisted suicide and technologically prolonged life, 152, 176–77, 217, 302–3; 409, 410, 404, 598, 611, 725, 737, 753, 761, 815–16, 823; description of, 103; implications for social work practice, 114; Joan’s sister Barbara’s failure to receive, 1–5; in multiple contexts, xxii; sharing of suffering, xxvi; values and attitudes promoting, 98; see also Self-determination
Respectful death care model: bridging cultural gap, 110–11; case studies, 112–13, 115, 118–17, 122; challenging standard professional and personal boundaries, 115; clinician as consultant, collaborator, and guide, 115; difficulties faced by clinicians, 112–13; family caregivers, 109; healthcare team, 110; ill persons, 109; interdisciplinary system of care, 118–19; with patient in center of system, 123; process versus prescription, 103–4; proposed protocol for exploring, 111–12; research-based, 104–7; self-knowledge of one’s own response to loss, 118
Rich, B. A., 741, 765
Rituals of burial, 192; cultural considerations, 576; of ending and termination, 199–202; at Family Unity (retreat program), 563–57; funerals, 576, 577; memorial services, 568; of mourning and healing, 427; therapy as form of, 427; varying across cultures, 424
Rizzuto, A., 105, 484
Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, 137, 159, 609–10, 528, 838; Last Acts Coalition, 547, 638, 585, 542; SUPPORT (Study to Understand Prognoses and Preferences for Outcomes and Risks of Treatment), 381, 413, 765, 794, 795, 820, 832
Robinson, D., 206–7
Rolland, J. S., 325
Rosenberg, D., 25
Rosenblatt, P., 139
Rosner, F., 786
Rossi, C., 422
Rossman, G., 801
Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody (RCIADIC), 782
Rubin, S., 143
Runcie, R., 857
Rutland, C. B., 462–78
Ryan, M., 781
Sachs, J., 190
Safety, sense of, 657, 665–65, 666–68
St. Christopher’s Hospice, London, 786
Salt, Hindu master’s parable of, 39–40
Sanctity of life (state interest), 736
Sandler, J., 664
Saunders, Dame Cicely, xxvi, 135, 131, 786, 817, 828
Scanlon, J. M., 436
Scapegoating in support groups, 524–25
Schechter, N. L., 380
Schuman, W. H., 477
Schut, W., 262, 352, 591
Schwarz, V., 30
Secondary trauma, hospital workers experiencing, 85–88, 90
Self-care: anam cara (soul friend), 860–61; balance between home and work, 862; burnout, xxvi, 83; caregiver grief and stress, 849–52, 853; compassion fatigue, 477, 852–53; education, 862; grief and mourning, 862; grieving over death of patients, 317; inner bereaved child, 860; making a difference from personal to political, 862–63; minding oneself, 861–63; professional loneliness at edge of events, 859–60; psychological trauma and healing, 854–57; renewal of hope and purpose, 870; Renzenbrink’s personal and professional reflection, 863–66; sharing personal reactions for mutual support, 858; social workers as intimate strangers yet surrogate relatives of dying or deceased, 859; soul pain, 860; stress management, 862; supervision, 861; support programs, 850–62; teamwork and “cappuccino therapy,” 862; therapy, 861; values, 861; vicarious traumatization, 853–54; wounded healers, 859–60, 864–65; see also Vulnerability of social workers
Self-determination: balanced with family common good, diversity of, 14–16; empathy, 164; ethical issues, 193; overview, xxii–xxiv; see also Assessment; Clinical practice; Social work profession
Smith College School for Social Work, 12–13
Snyder, L., 178
Sobriety (cases of former substance abuse), 470
Social Work Assessment Tool (SWAT), 156
Social workers, facing own mortality: addressing denial, deriving meaning from death, 297; coming to grips with many deaths, 864; distancing from client, 502; knowing oneself, 266; as listening presence, xxv, 3–4, 6, 9, 123; self-knowledge of response to loss, 118; understanding one’s own reasons and motivation, 852; see also Self-care; Vulnerability of social workers
Social work, future of: aging of U.S. population, 838–39; building competency for end-of-life care, 842–43; building multicultural competency, 841–42; challenging discrimination inherent in healthcare system, 741–52, 751, 840–41; impact of managed care, 839–40; more and better education in end-of-life care, 838; see also Leadership in social work
Social work in end-of-life care: at-risk and underserved populations, spokespersons for, 9, 755; attitudes necessary for, xxv–xxvi; as “calling,” 172; crisis-oriented nature of, 549; curriculum development, 12–13; cutbacks in staff, 312; disaster relief critical resource, 72; 73; ethical issues, recommendations, 183–84; goals for this book, 6–7; hospice care, 153, 154–55; interdisciplinary teams, approaches, 163–66; legal issues, inequitable interaction with, 754; neutrality and boundaries, xxi, xxx, 79; palliative care role, xxi–xx, 419–21; policy change, new programs, and advocates, need for, 9, 156–57, 725, 754; research, potential areas for, xx, 805; respectful death care model, implications of, 114; role of, xx–xxi, 14–18, 754, 827, 828–29; service delivery, gaps in, 7–8; serving minority poor populations, 841; shortage of gerontologists, 839; poor populations, 841; shortage in, 7–8; serving minority populations, 827–29; service delivery, gaps in, xx–xxi, 114–18, 754, 827, 843; implications of, 114; role of, xx–xx, 156–57, 725, 754; research, advocates, need for, 9, change, new programs, and role, xix–xx, 419–21; policy, xx, xxv, 70; palliative care neutrality and boundaries, table interaction with, 754; NASW, xix–xx, 178–79, 544, 547, 607; National Association of Social Workers (NASW), xix–xx, 178–79, 770; origins, 825–26; social worker as anxiety-containment vessel, 282; social worker as conduit, mirror, guide, and ally, 293; social worker as consultant, guide, 16; struggle with self-esteem and identity, 825; suitability for involvement in ethical issues, 172; traditional role in community resources and protective support systems, 827; unfavorable environment in healthcare field, 836; see also Leadership in social work; Research in social work conceptual frameworks; Social work in end-of-life care

Social Work Summit on End of Life and Palliative Care, 843

Society for Social Work Leadership in Health Care, 843

Sons: middle-aged, experiencing loss of parent, 206; serving with power of attorney for healthcare for parents, 217–18; see also Gender issues

Sormanti, M., xix

Soros Foundation: Open Society Institute Project on Death in America, 137–38, 421, 547, 610, 834; support for palliative care, 828

Spirituality and religion: adding meaning to end-of-life care, 101; assessment and engagement, 194–95; attempts to explain suffering, 24–25; centrality undermined by authority of medicine, 26; changing sense of self, 195–96; coming to terms with “unfinished business,” 502–3; communal feeling through support groups, 513; continuation of life patterns of behavior, 431; despair versus hope, 68; dimensions of pain experience, 395; expression and exploration of emotional pain, xx–xxi, xxiii; factors influencing perception of pain, 587f; family assessment, 556–57; “genealogy” of, 193; ghosts and spirits, 258; God representation, 195–96; importance at end of life, 189, 192–94; internalization of doctrinal condemnation of homosexuality, 486–87; interventions for pain management, 398; issues in death of a child, 328; need for understanding, xxi; questions for assessing religious history, 196–98; reflection service at Family Unity (retreat program), 655–56; reframing issues of pain relief, 390–91; religion compared to spirituality, 191–92, 425–26; rituals of ending and termination, 199–202; rituals of mourning and healing, 427; rituals, traditions, and clergy as help for bereaved, 62–63, 193, 572, 575–79; role in end-of-life care, 424–25; role in social work assessment, 428–34; role in social work education, 427–28; social worker as “midwife” to presence of transcendent, 198–99; social workers’ goals for, 193; social workers’ need to examine own spiritual development, 203; suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 124, 125; therapist’s countertransference, 434–36; transplantation and end of life (with case example), 689–90; within theory of object relations, 195; witness to crises of faith, 203

Spradley, J., 850

“Starfish” story, 71

State boards of professions, 162

Stein, G. L., 499–531

Stereotypes. See Discrimination

Stevens, M., 795

Stiver, I. P., 214, 219–20

Stolorow, R. D., 342

Stories, as meaning, continuity, sense of identity as adaptation to grief and loss, 13; authorship by patient and family, 117; “chaos stories,” 51; creating within patient’s plus families’ values, 104;
Stories, as meaning, continuity, sense of identity (Cont.)
defining hopes and dreams for patient's remaining time, 144; eliciting in discussions with patients and caregivers about end-of-life care, 112; by families in collective life reviews, 561; as form of mourning ritual, 427; "helping him cry," 69; Hindu master's parable of salt, 39–40; importance in assessment, 120–21; as lenses for understanding views of living and dying, 98; life review and preview with dying children, 333–34; "making a difference to starfish," 71; as narrative therapy, 587; need to suspend preconceived notions, 107; play and "storywriting" with ill children, 331–33; prisoners', 787; "quest stories," 31–32; sharing in, as therapeutic for all, 121; of terminally ill children, 345; "words upon our hearts," 195; "wounded healer" tale, 54–55; see also Ethnography Strauss, A., 138 Stroebe, M., 143, 262, 352 Stroebe, W., 143, 591 Substance-use disorders, 469–73 "Substituted" judgment, 467, 504, 597, 733, 764 Suffering: caregivers' encounters with, 34–40; categorization as inauthenticating, 29; ethnography of, 23–27; historical understanding, 35–36; as loss of personhood, 26–27; and meaning making, 29–34; medical perspective on, 26–27; and pain and symptom management, 357; as perception of threat to self, 120; role of witness to, xxv; spiritual and religious views of, 24–25; suggested questions to explore patient/caregivers perspectives, 125; as surrender to new sense of reality, 27; "tragic vision" of, 32 Suicide: gender-related in bereavement, 222–13; prevention of (state interest), 736–37; risk of, in cancer patients, 704; risk of, in persons with disabilities, 501; by those who survive loved ones, 464; thoughts of, indicating possible depression, 371; see also Physician-assisted suicide Sulmasy, D. P., 178 Superego in mourning, 247 Supervision, for clinical social workers, 315–17 Support groups: benefits of, 510; bereavement, 586–81; caregiving, 583–85; camp programs for terminally ill children, 336, 337; cancer patients, 705; for children facing death of loved one, 516–17, 568; compared to psychotherapy groups, 508–10; Compassionate Friends, 145; development through "Project Liberty" after September 11, 91; growing network of, 145; mutual-aid and self-help programs, 581–83; for social workers, 861–62; Widowed Persons Service (AARP), 145; see also Groups, clinical practice with SUPPORT (Study to Understand Prognoses and Preferences for Outcomes and Risks of Treatment), 581, 413, 765, 794, 795, 820, 842 Surrogate decision makers, 175, 176, 465, 504–5, 532, 563, 733, 740–41, 764 Sutton, A. L., 528–31 Swanson, J. W., 181 SWAT (Social Work Assessment Tool), 136 Talmud, 24–35 Taylor-Brown, S., 549, 559, 561, 566, 642–59 TEAM (Together Everyone Achieves More) services, 642 Telemedicine, 622 Terminal sedation, 750, 751 Terr, L. C., 666 Terrorism, 32–33 The Hospice Heritage, 835 Theory, issues of: analytical pitfalls in research literature, 208–9; bases, xx; caution on absence of data, 209; at core of social work in end-of-life care, xx–xxi; as critiqued hypothetical explanations, 98–99; as works in progress, 99; see also Assessment, of larger contexts and institutions; Research in social work conceptual frameworks Therapeutic relationships, 110, 111, 310–11 Therapeutic touch, 398 Third parties, innocent, protection of (state interest), 736 Thompson, B., 482–95 Thompson, N., 482–85 Thompson, S., 348–58 Thoresen, C. E., 467 Thurman, H., 37 Tillman, T., 623 Time, chronological versus durational, 45 Tombstones. See Graves, grave-marks, tombstones Touch, therapeutic, 398 Training in end-of-life care: curriculum development, 12–13; inadequacy for social workers in hospices, 157–54; inadequacy of, xix–xx; for medical professions, 161–62; needed in attitudes and skills in support of respectful death, 114, 123; needed in ethical issues, 184; need for preparatory curricula, 9; need for social worker leadership in improving, 8; of older people, 355–56; optimizing family conferences with interdisciplinary teams, 563; Transference, 854 Translators, interpreters, and language barriers, 396, 440, 452, 456–58, 465–66, 475, 476, 686 Transplantation: age limits, 600–601; applications, 677–78; avoidance of discussion of risk of death, 675; caregivers and family, 679;
donors, 686; isolation with geographic dislocation, 686–87; overview, types of, 676–77; roles of family, 685–86; settings, 679–80; as source of hope despite risks, 675; trajectory of process, 678–79; unfamiliarity and uncertainty for patients and families, 676; Websites, 695

Transplantation and end of life: advance directives and healthcare proxies (with case example), 688–89; bereavement of family, 690–91; bereavement of staff members, 691; causes of death, 681; family conferences, 688; geographic dislocation, 680, 687; ICU setting for patients with serious complications, 679; multicultural issues, 689; pain and symptom management, 687–88; patient and family unprepared (with case example), 684–85; role of social workers, 691–92; spirituality and religion (with case example), 689–90; timing in relation to illness (with case examples), 681, 685; timing in relation to patients life cycle (with case example), 681–84; timing in relation to transplant trajectory (with case example), 684–85; timing of death, 680, 681–85

Trauma. See Disasters and sudden traumas

Traumatization, vicarious, 853–54

Travis, S. S., 638

Treatments: avoiding or delaying, 279–81; for cancer, 699–700, 705–7; in cases of medical futility, prolonging dying process, 179–83, 528–9, 409, 410, 599–601; for depression, worsening symptoms, 467, 503; legal presumption in favor of, 737; medications affecting behavior and cognition, 504; unwanted, early policy effort on stopping, 816–17; weighing against suffering and expense, 816; withholding and withdrawing, 176–77; see also Transplantation

Tronto, J., 27–28

Trust, 657, 665

Truth telling: cultural attitudes, 773–74; to dying children, in age-appropriate manner, 330–31; informed consent, 594, 596, 598; physicians’ struggle with, near end of life, 596; required for trust in patient-doctor relationship, 606; versus protecting patients from truth of diagnosis, 354, 596, 604, 773–74; see also Communication

Turkey, earthquake, 662–63

Tutty, L. M., 797

Unconsciousness, inducing with palliative sedation in the imminently dying, 589

United Hospital Fund, 828

University of California Davis West Coast Center for Palliative Care and Research, 622

Vachon, M., 851–52

Values and attitudes: in family assessment, 554–56; influencing meaning making as well as resources, 98; inherent in concept of “good,” 103; providing context for prospect of death and bereavement, 128–29; workbook for patients and families reflecting on, 426–7; see also Ethical issues; Multicultural issues

Values history as adjunct to advance directive, 735, 742–47; see also Ethical issues; Multicultural issues

Van Gennep, A., 138

Veninga, R., 850

Victoria Hospice Society (British Columbia), 862

Victoria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, 132

Videtapes, 326, 712

Visualization and imagery for pain management, 402–3

Wald, F., 151, 828

Walsh-Burke, K., 360–78, 549, 559, 560, 566

Walsh, F., 365

Walsh, R. P., 139

Walder, T., 130

Warrier, S., 442

Washington v. Glucksberg, 137, 746, 748, 751–52

Websites: evaluating information on Internet, 543–44; Funeral Consumers Alliance, 653; Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPPA), 799; Last Acts Coalition, 547, 638; Listserv network, 834; Medicare, 636; mutual aid groups, 582; resources for end-of-life care, 546–47; transplantation issues, 695; see also Internet

Weissman, A., 130, 134

West Coast Center for Palliative Care and Research (UC Davis), 622

Western cultures, approaches to bereavement/grief/mourning, 257

Widowed Persons Service (AARP-based support groups), 145, 583
Widowhood: bereavement experiences, 212; connecting to deceased, 255; duration of bereavement, 11; as focus of studies of grieving, 209; gender-related implications for practice, 209–21; loss of sense of self, 234–35; maintaining relationship with deceased, 144; relational theory, 213–15

Williams, M., 797
Winnicott, D. W., 195–96, 250

Witnessing, being a listening presence: with accompanying feeling of anxiety and horror, 32; alleviating fears of isolation and abandonment, 122; as aspect of discussions with patients and caregivers about end-of-life care, 122; in face of suffering, 120; facing loss, and being "more present," 14; as honor, xxvi; as humbling and spiritual, 869; as key task, xxiii; pain of "chaos stories," 51; as personally difficult, 851; rather than "fixer," 107; at request by sick and dying patients, 69; requiring attunement to one’s own suffering, 9; with terminally ill and families, 716; without expecting change, 53; without rushing to relieve suffering, 121–22

Wolterstorff, N., 31
Women. See Gender issues
Women’s movement, 146, 865
Worden, J. W., 143
Workplace, gender issues in, 216
Yalom, I., 298
Zabora, J. R., 550
Zilberfein, F., 297–317

Downloaded from cupola.columbia.edu