

Contributors

Livia Alexander is executive director of ArteEast, an international nonprofit organization that supports and promotes artists from the Middle East and its diasporas by raising awareness of their work through public events, exhibitions, film screenings, and a resource-rich Web site. She has curated and consulted on numerous film festivals focusing on the cinemas of the Middle East, including Music on the Nile: Fifty Years of Egyptian Musical Films, Debating Center and Margin: Minorities in the Middle East, and Crossing Borders: From Algerian to Buer Cinema. She has a PhD in Middle Eastern cinemas from New York University and is currently completing a book manuscript on Israeli and Palestinian cinemas between the two intifadas.

Chris Berry is professor of film and television studies and codirector of the Goldsmiths Leverhulme Media Research Centre at Goldsmiths College, University of London, and author of many books, including Post-socialist Cinema in Post-Mao China: The Cultural Revolution After the Cultural Revolution.

Phil Carney is a lecturer in criminology at University of Kent, England, and author of the forthcoming The Punitive Gaze.

David Danzig is project director for the Primetime Torture Project at Human Rights First and coproducer of the documentary Primetime Torture.

Faisal Devji is University Reader in Modern South Asian History at Oxford University and sits on the editorial board of the journal Public Culture. Devji is the author of two books, Landscapes of the Jihad: Militancy, Morality, Modernity and The Terrorist in Search of Humanity: Militant Islam and Global Politics, and is currently writing a book on the emergence of Muslim politics and the founding of Pakistan.

Michael Flynn is associate professor of psychology at York College, City University of New York, and associate director of the Center on Terrorism at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, City University of New York. He is the coeditor of Globalizing the Streets: Cross-Cultural Perspectives on Youth, Social Control, and Empowerment; Trauma and Self; Genocide, War, and Human Survival; and The Year 2000: Essays on the End.

Elizabeth Swanson Goldberg is professor of English at Babson College and author of Beyond Terror: Gender, Narrative, and Human Rights.

Marnia Lazreg is professor of sociology at the Graduate Center, City University of New York, and author of several books, including Torture and the Twilight of Empire: From Algiers to Baghdad.

Alfred W. McCoy is J. R. W. Smail Professor of History, University of Wisconsin, Madison, and author of many books, including A Question of Torture: CIA Interrogation, from the Cold War to the War on Terror.

Stjepan G. Mestrovic is professor of sociology at Texas A&M University and author of several books, including The Trials of Abu Ghraib: An Expert Witness Account of Honor and Shame.

Lee Quinby is Distinguished Lecturer of English and American Studies at Macauley Honors College, City University of New York, and author of many books, including Millennial Seduction: A Skeptic Confronts Apocalyptic Culture.

Darius Rejali is professor of political science at Reed College and author of Torture and Democracy.

Fabiola F. Salek is associate professor and chair of humanities and foreign languages and coordinator of the women's studies program at York College, City University of New York, and research associate at the Center on Terrorism at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, City University of New York. She has published articles on gender, human rights, and film.

Carolyn Strange is senior research fellow at Australia National University's College of Arts and Sciences and author of True Crime, True North: The Golden Age of Canadian Pulp Magazines.